Nation's Violent Death Toll Is 441 Over Week-End

FATALITIES IN TRAFFIC LEAD LIST

99 Drown; Others Lose Lives in Variety of Accidents

By the Associated Press

The national today listed its total of violent deaths at 441 in the week-end celebration of Independence day.

It was the largest Fourth of July fatality list since 1931, when 483 died, and the second largest in the last nine years.

Fireworks resulted in six deaths, one less than last year. Advance estimates were that the sale of pyrotechnics had increased substantially in 1936. In 1930 there were 12 deaths attributed to fireworks. In 1928 eleven, in 1929, 1933 and 1935 seven each, six in 1931 and two in 1934.

Traffic Deaths Lead

Motor vehicle fatalities numbered 260 as unprecedented numbers took to the highways for the double holiday. Deaths by drowning were listed at 99. Others lost their lives in tavern brawls, airplane crashes, wild shooting, and railroad and other accidents. Fires and lightning claimed still other victims.

The record compared unfavorably with the list of 205 in 1928, 159 in 1929, 178 in 1930, 243 in 1932, 185 in 1933, 175 in 1934, and 216 in 1935 despite widespread appeals for a safe and sane celebration.

National guardsmen occupied Remsen, Iowa. A firecracker there started a blaze that resulted in a loss estimated at $500,000. Four blocks of business buildings were razed. Fifteen families were homeless.

Twenty-nine California Toll Death came to 29 persons in California in automobile and airplane accidents and from drowning, shooting and fire during the Fourth-of-July week-end.

Hundreds were injured, most of them by fireworks in the larger cities.

San Francisco emergency hospitals treated 150 persons during Saturday and Sunday for injuries from all causes. Thirty-five were treated in Los Angeles for fireworks injuries and more than 60 in Sacramento.

Borah Will Run And Back G. O. P.

BOISE, Ida., (AP)—W. Scott Hall, close political associate of Sen. William E. Borah (R., Ida.), for a quarter of a century, said today Borah will be a candidate for reelection and that he will support the state and national Republican tickets.

Hall issued his statement after an hour's conference with the senator.

"I am convinced," Hall said, "that Senator Borah will be a candidate for reelection on the Republican ticket and that he will not be a candidate on any other ticket."

"He will support the Republican ticket—state and national."

Mother Ought to Know Who's Dad Of Her Triplets

WEST PALM BEACH, Fla. (AP)—Mrs. T. J. Miller said today that her husband is the father of her nine-months-old triplets, claimed by two men as their sons.

Mrs. Miller criticized Louis D. Pierre of Miami for instituting habeas corpus proceedings designed to take the children from their mother and the West Palm Beach barber she married last February.

"Pierre's charges are ridiculous," she said. "T. J. Miller is the father of my triplets."

The Dade county juvenile court last February ordered the triplets taken from the mother—then separated from her first husband, Aubrey Johnson—on the grounds she was not able to support them.

She subsequently divorced Johnson. Both Miller and Pierre claimed to be father of the babies and offered marriage to Mrs. Johnson. She accepted Miller and again was given custody of the children.

Open Warfare Looms In Failing Pickers' Strike

ARMY OF 350 READY FOR TROUBLE

Men Hurt As Reports of Agitators' Invasion Rouse Officers

With reports from apparently reliable sources that several hundred labor agitators and strong-arm crews from outside the county intended to pitch into the pickers' strike by upsetting trucks and manhandling crews, officers remained on the alert today.

Hundreds of guards with shotguns and clubs stood guard over crews picking oranges, and sheriffs and highway patrol officers covered the county carefully. A "little army" of more than 350 officers and special deputies was on hand.

It appeared today that strikers' families might be seriously handicapped in getting food, as a group of Mexican merchants have stopped selling on credit to strikers, it was learned today.

The merchants were meeting today with Stuart Strathman, growers' representatives in an effort to find means of ending the strike, which has cut down their volume of business as pickers' salaries stopped.

Cut In Scuffle

Several men felt violence of rest-less strikers over the week-end, although disturbances otherwise were few, J. W. Heron, 55, 505 East Washington street, reported several Mexican agitators.

Leonard Ramos, 1708 West Fifth street, told police several strikers came to his home Saturday and told him to come outside. He refused and called police to ask if it would be all right to use a baseball bat if they came in. They told him that would be in order, but the men had left.

Five laborers were arrested over the week-end on minor charges, and Sheriff Logan Jackson said today the situation looked quiet.

The "jailed were Alipio Ramirez, 42, Garden Grove, drunk; Alfonso Herrera, 23, Anaheim. (Please Turn to Page 2, Col. 1)

Five Slain in Fight Over Car

LUFKIN, Tex. (AP)—A gun battle which led to the death of five men was attributed by police today to an argument over the price of a rented motor car.

The victims were Charlie Newberry, 49, operator of a taxicab service; his two sons, J. B. and Elmer; and two negroes, Willie Castle and O. T. Boatright.

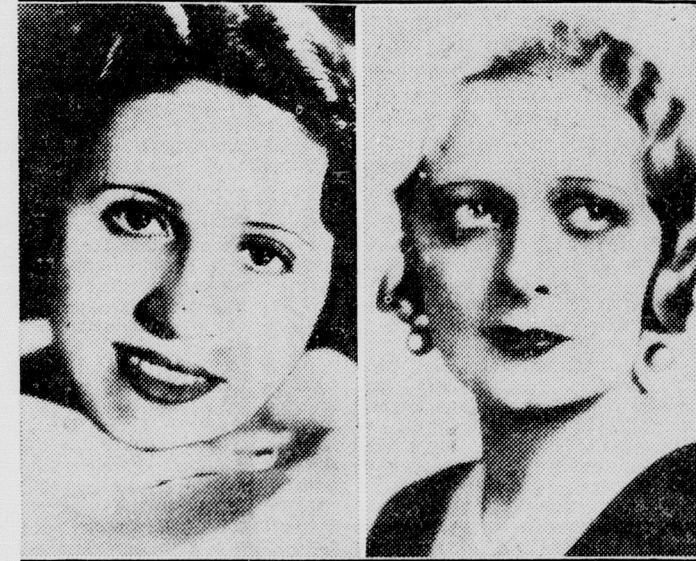

The Newberrys were wounded fatally Saturday night after an argument with the two negroes in the taxicab office. Although critically wounded, J. B. Newberry raced after the fleeing Boatright, shooting him fatally. Castle was killed yesterday when cornered by a posse of 10 officers.

Missionaries in China Flee War

HONG KONG. (AP)—American and British missionaries fled today from the interior of Kwangsi province in fear of a new outbreak of Chinese internal warfare.

With their position in Kwangsi reported rapidly becoming worse, American missionaries proceeded from the interior toward Wuchow, on the Si Kiang river in the eastern section of the province. Meanwhile British missionaries started for Hong Kong lest they be stranded in Nanking, in the southwest of the province on the same river, should hostilities break out.

Showgirl Mysteriously Slain

Miss Audrey Vallette (right), 31-year-old former showgirl, was found shot to death in her Chicago hotel room. Police hunted Mrs. Ruth Freed (left), wife of a night club owner, for questioning in the belief she was the brunette who had visited Miss Vallette shortly before her death. (Associated Press Photos)

JAPAN DOOMS S.A. MEN AID 17 REBELS FARM MEET

Leaders Must Die For February Revolt; 49 Others Sentenced

TOKYO, (Tuesday). (AP)—A special court martial early today sentenced 17 leaders of the Feb. 26 rebellion to death and five others to life imprisonment.

The court also convicted 44 non-commissioned officers and eight civilians, ordering them imprisoned for terms ranging from 18 months to 15 years.

The charges against them included murder, rebellion, and disobedience to the commands of the emperor himself.

Okada Escaped

It was in this rebellion that the premier, Admiral Keisuke Okada, narrowly escaped assassination. Three other statesmen were killed.

Shortly after midnight Feb. 26 the officer-leaders of the coup ordered some 1400 men under their command in Azabu Ward and marched them to the heart of the capital.

Before dawn small groups of officers armed with pistols, machine-guns and swords, and riding in motor cars, descended on the residences of five of the empire's leading statesmen in Tokyo.

Three statesmen slain. Three elderly statesmen, among the most distinguished in Japan's recent history, lord keeper of the privy seal and former premier; General Jotaro Watanabe, inspector-general of military education, and Korekiyo Takahashi, minister of finance and former premier.

The rebellion finally collapsed when the 1400 enlisted men heeded the government's appeals and promises of leniency and laid down their arms.

Dr. S. P. Cadman Is Near Death

PLATTSBURGH, N. Y. (AP)—Dr. L. G. Barton, Jr., said today that the condition of Dr. S. Parkes Cadman, noted radio preacher, was "critical."

Dr. Barton, who is attending the 71-year-old Brooklyn clergyman at the Champlain Valley hospital, said he was "quite sure" that Dr. Cadman had a ruptured appendix and that an operation would be necessary.

Mercury at 98 Here on Sunday

Santa Ana was cool again today—that is, compared with Sunday's sweltering weather. Yesterday at 3 p. m. the thermometer read 98 degrees; today at 1 p. m. it was 87. The high on Saturday was 88 at 3:15 p. m. A freak shower at 7 a. m. today probably had something to do with today's lower temperatures.

RECORD HEAT BURNING UP MID-WEST

Farmers Look Toward Skies in Vain For Break in Weather

CHICAGO, (AP)—Record heat increased damage and distress in the midwestern drought belt today.

Despairing farmers pinned their hopes for a break in the protracted siege on a change in the weather. But none was sighted for the immediate future. Instead, a broadening of the high temperature blanket was forecast. Abnormal heat seared the prairies from the Rocky Mountains to Western Kentucky yesterday. All-time high marks were broken at Winston, N. D., and Rapid City, S. D., with respective readings of 110 and 106 degrees. A new record of 105 was established at Moline, Ill. Other maxima included:

Other Hot Spots

Miles City, Mont., 108; Hastings, Neb., 107; Bismarck, N. D., Sioux Falls, S. D., and Fremont, Neb., 106; Grand Island, Neb., 105; Des Moines, Ia., and Dickinson, N. D., 104; Harvey, Mont., 102; Huron, S. D., 100.

Scattered showers fell in Southern and Atlantic states. Light precipitation was indicated for tomorrow in some parts of the Dakotas, Wisconsin and Indiana, but the general prediction was for hot, dry weather.

With corn in a critical period, the moisture or aridity of the next fortnight will determine whether the drought destruction of 1936 will equal the devastation of 1934 in the opinion of Secretary of Agriculture Wallace.

Pray for Rain

Thousands of Catholics in Nebraska knelt at special masses yesterday to pray for rain. They were urged to continue their orisons.

In Arizona the Navajo Indians chanted supplications in a "rain-making" ritual. Approximately 3000 resourceless farmers in Wyoming, North Dakota and Montana were called to work on WPA relief projects. Administrators planned to employ at least 50,000 in building water conservation dams and farm-to-market roads in those states and South Dakota and Minnesota.

Senator Gore Opposed by 7

OKLAHOMA CITY, (AP)—Oklahoma—scene of many a turbulent political battle—will vote tomorrow in a closely contested primary which has politicians guessing as to whether blind Thomas P. Gore can win re-nomination for the United States senate seat he has occupied 19 years.

Seven rivals seek Gore's place in the Democratic primary. They include Gov. E. W. Marland, New Deal candidate; Homer Smith, national vice president of the Townsend old age pension movement; and Josh Lee, fifth district congressman and a New Dealer.

League Sets Date To Drop Sanctions

GENEVA, (AP)—The League of Nations coordinating committee adopted a resolution today fixing July 15 as the date on which to suspend economic and financial sanctions against Italy. The vote on the motion was unanimous.

The recommendation will be placed before the league assembly for final action.

WPA CHORUS BOY KICKS But He Doesn't Kick in Chorus

Charles McLauchlan, the on-when as a matter of fact he is a singing chorister.

"There are choruses and choruses," he said today, "and the one from which I get fired now and then is a vocal chorus."

"Besides which," he said, "what makes you so sure I'll be fired again?"

It is true that he has not been fired again yet, although the provisions of the new work relief set up plainly state that candidates for political jobs to which pay is attached may not work for WPA.

New Siamese Twins Born, Joined at Skull; One Dies; May Operate to Save Other

MICHIGAN CITY, Ind., (AP)—Twin girls joined at the base of the skull were born today to Mrs. Wesley Glick in the Clinic hospital here, but one lived only 15 minutes.

Dr. J. G. Rogers, attending physician, said he was considering the possibility of an operation to save the remaining baby.

He said the case was similar to that of the Fiorenza twins born last week to Mrs. Diego Fiorenza of Everett, a Boston suburb.

15 YEARS IS SPY'S TERM

Thompson, Former Jail Inmate Here, Takes 'Jolt' in Silence

America's first peace-time spy, Harry T. Thompson, discharged U. S. navy yeoman and former prisoner in the Orange county jail, was sentenced today to 15 years in federal prison.

Judge Leon Yankwich, in sentencing Thompson at Los Angeles for conspiring to sell navy information to a Japanese agent, said he took into consideration the defendant's youth in failing to impose the maximum sentence of 20 years. Associated Press dispatches said.

The court, however, severely denounced the convicted spy, declaring "the highest quality of man is loyalty" and "we have the right to expect loyalty in all human associations."

Thompson showed no emotion when sentence was imposed. He said he had nothing to say. His attorney, J. George O'Hannesson, asked the court to show as much leniency as possible.

"He will be branded forever with the mark of Cain—the mark of a traitor," said O'Hannesson.

KILLER REFUSES $700 BONUS

SAN QUENTIN, (AP)—Charles Stevens, 46, former Los Angeles policeman sentenced to be hanged Friday, refused $700 in bonus bonds today, saying, "I won't need them where I'm going."

Stevens applied for the veterans' compensation May 8 after receiving a 60-day reprieve from Gov. Frank P. Merriam.

"I won't sign for them," guards quoted Stevens. "I'm not going to beat this rap. A million dollars in bonds won't do me any good where I'm going."

"You can keep them in the post-office for a few days. I might decide to give them to the hangman. Then, perhaps, the state won't have to pay for my death."

2 'Cal' Crew Men Injured in Crash

PRINCETON, N. J. (AP)—A negro woman was killed, and two members of the University of California crew injured today as two automobiles collided in South Brunswick township.

Erwald Swanson, 27, of Turlock, Calif., who rowed No. 3 on the crew in the Olympic finals yesterday, was taken to Princeton hospital for treatment of severe hand lacerations. Lawrence Arpen, 20, of Berkeley, Calif., stroke of the crew, suffered a slight laceration. Carroll W. Brigham, 21, of Berkeley, also a member of the crew and driver of the car, was not injured.

Woman Quizzed in Death of Husband

LOS ANGELES, (AP)—Police booked Mrs. Carrie Elliott as a material witness today in the fatal shooting of her husband, W. F. Elliott, 52-year-old electrician.

Shot through the head, Elliott's body was found last night by his son, Thomas, when the latter returned to his home from a holiday outing. His mother, the youth told police, was in a drunken stupor on a bed in the same room. Detectives said Mrs. Elliott admitted drinking with her husband and that he declared he would "end it all." A shot suddenly aroused her, she said.

FOUR KILLED IN HOLIDAY TRAFFIC

Driver Unconscious in Hospital Following Local Accident

Killed in county traffic accidents so far this year..... 33
Killed in county traffic accidents same time last year..... 28

Death and injury put a sudden stop to July 4 celebrations in a score of families over the week-end, as four persons were killed and at least 18 injured on Orange county highways. Three deaths occurred Saturday and one Sunday.

High Speed

Alma Lindsey, 76, Pasadena, became the county's thirty-third traffic fatality for the year yesterday morning when she was killed instantly at First street and Harbor boulevard two miles west of Santa Ana. She was a passenger in a car driven by Ruth Birdsey, 19, Pasadena, which collided with an auto driven by Russell H. Hurst, 30, Los Angeles, as the two reached the intersection at high speed.

Hurst is in serious condition at the county hospital with a skull fracture. He is unconscious. Miss Birdsey and her father and mother, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Birdsey, were injured. After treatment at county hospital, they were taken to a private hospital in Pasadena.

Newlyweds Killed

The first three deaths of the holiday week-end occurred early Saturday morning. Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Lenhart, newlywed couple from San Bernardino, were both fatally injured at 5 a. m. Saturday, when their car was struck by a passenger train near Fullerton.

Hilario Rodriguez, 28, Santa Ana, was killed earlier that morning when his car was involved in a head-on collision in Santa Ana canyon. Irwin Madden, Southgate, driver of the other car, suffered a broken arm.

Girl Unconscious

Mary A. Rogers, 16, Fullerton, was unconscious for several hours (Please Turn to Page 2, Col. 4)

PERSONAL TAX TOTAL DOWN

Because of a lowered tax rate and loss of automobiles from the county tax roll, tax collections on unsecured personal property for the fiscal year just closed dropped $64,920.70, Assessor James Sleeper reported.

Collections made during the assessment period closed at noon today were $447,847.88, as compared with $522,795.38 last year. The collections last year were made on a tax rate of 92 cents per $100 inside cities and $1.04 outside cities; this year the rates were 69 cents inside cities and 73 cents outside cities.

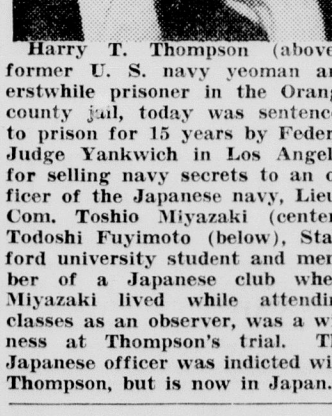

Automobiles were taken from county rolls and placed on the state rolls by the recent law which requires the state to collect auto taxes along with license fees when license plates are issued.

Tornado Damages Town Near Border

EL CENTRO, (AP)—A freak tornado which blew in from the Mexican border and disappeared in the desert left 13 miles of telephone and power lines tumbled down and several buildings in ruins at Plaster City today.

Two box cars were derailed, trees were snapped and a cement plant was damaged as the high wind swept the little Imperial Valley community near here yesterday. It was followed by a virtual cloudburst and half an inch of rain fell in 10 minutes.

Prison for Spy

Three Fires Rage In Two States

SHERIDAN, Wyo. (AP)—Three forest fires, one of which may have been started by an airplane crash, raged in northern Wyoming and southern Montana today.

In an inaccessible area of the Big Horn National forest, 75 miles northwest of here, 200 fire fighters sought to stamp out a fire which forestry officials said might possibly have been started by an airplane accident. The other two fires burned in the Custer National forest southwest of Billings, Mont., and near the Shoshone National forest, northwest of Cody, Wyo.

Can Politicians Make the Rain Fall?

Can Washington and the New Deal stop the drought which threatens to become worse than the terrific visitation of 1934 in the Midwest? Are dry spells man-made or nature-made? You will find the answer in "Washington Merry-Go-Round" on the last page of today's paper. Every Day Drew Pearson and Robert S. Allen draw pictures for The Journal of what is happening at the national capital. This is a political year. Keep up with national politics and the federal government in The Journal.

JUNE ORANGE SHIPMENTS IN DROP

Send 1903 Carloads in First Half of Year; Lemons Are Firm

Shipments of Valencia oranges on July 1 were 131 cars below the level set at this time last year, figures released today by the Orange County Fruit Exchange show.

Despite the smaller crop this year, 6150 cars of tree crop still remain to be shipped, as compared to the 4860 carloads of actual shipment made last year after July 1. The number remaining to be shipped, however, includes culls and off-grade oranges, many of which will not be shipped at all.

Lemon Market

Shipments for June of Valencia amounted to 1379 carloads, 96 cars of which were sold through the Los Angeles distributing plant, and 1283 moved to export and domestic markets, bringing the total shipped this year to 1903 cars, compared to last year's shipment of 2034 carloads at this time.

Lemon shipments from this district for the month of June amounted to 151 cars, bringing the total shipments to date up to 531 cars. The market on California lemons during June remained steady, with prices at a satisfactory level, even though temperatures in most markets have been only seasonal.

Ample Supply

The total California Fruit Growers' Exchange storage as of July 1 shows a decrease of 660 cars as compared with the storage of June 15, and is below supplies in storage at this time during the past four years. It is slightly less than one-half the storage of last year on July 1.

The revised tree crop as reported by the California-Arizona Orange and Grapefruit Agency as of July 4 amounts to 30,507 carloads of Valencia. This compares with an actual tree crop on the same date last year for all shippers of 34,833 cars. The estimated crop to go for the balance of this year is approximately 4000 cars greater than the average movement during the same period for the last six years and is about 4500 cars more than was shipped after July 1 during the 1934 season. It is, however, less than the record shipments of 1935. It is safe to conclude from these figures that there is an ample supply of fruit for every market in the country for the entire shipping season, the report concluded.

MORE ABOUT STRIKERS

Strikers became restless today, with large gatherings of Mexicans reported in several places. No violence had been reported during the day, however.

Would 'End Strike'

Meanwhile Frank Spire, Corona, president of the "Citrus Growers Protective Alliance," called at the Orange city hall and asked permission to use the basement for a meeting of growers. He said he would end the strike if his advice were taken, employees reported. His request was taken under advisement.

Growers kept on meeting their prorates, however, it was reported, and a statement by the Orange County Fruit Exchange said no trouble was expected. The statement follows:

Hardship Worked

"Strikers and outside agitators have attempted to tie up picking operations during the past month. Packing houses in this district, however, have moved each week their prorates allotments without interruption. This has been possible by furnishing protection to those men desiring to work."

"It has been a little disappointing to have some pickers who have worked for certain associations for years listen to agitators and strike leaders rather than talking the matter over with their packing house manager before going out on strike. It appears that the Mexicans have worked a hardship on themselves in striking in that many will be unable to get their jobs back because in many cases their jobs have been filled by others. We expect to move out crop to market on time and in an orderly and regular manner."

Drought Hits Roosevelt Farm, Too

Badges for Lobbyists: Green Skull Caps, Plaid Trousers

BATON ROUGE, La. (AP)—Louisiana lobbyists considered the possibility today of having to work in green skull caps and gaudy plaid trousers and hoped the legislature was only fooling.

Provisions for such a uniform and for a system of sharing wages with senators were included in a bill passed by both chambers and now waiting house concurrence in senate amendments.

Senators added a proviso that lobbyists attach certified checks in the sum of $1000 with applications, payable to the "fund for the social entertainment of the senators." Senators would have the right to withdraw the funds on their own warrant, up to $100 daily.

Senate advocates of the bill solemnly declared they stood ready to put it on the books even if they had to override a veto.

FIND 'TORTURE CHAMBER' NO FIREWORKS AT PICNIC

OAKLAND, (AP)—A "torture chamber," containing many weird appliances, was discovered Saturday in West Oakland and police sought to locate a woman who had occupied the place.

P. J. Port, owner of the property, found the terrifying apparatus, some of which was blood-covered, when he went to inspect the house.

He immediately called Patrolman E. R. Salmonson, who found a white mask, with a leather belt for the forehead, and neatly made holes for eyes, nose, ears and mouth. The mask bore dried bloodstains around the nose. Other articles included:

- A pair of goggles, with tape over the lenses.
- A collar with a four-foot metal chain and a steel buckle.
- A heavy board, 2 1/2 feet long, with two straps and buckles, apparently devised to hold a person's hands when the board was strapped behind.
- A leather collar with two ropes.
- Two leather wristlets with straps, like handcuffs.

Police Lieutenant Ira Reedy ordered officers to search for a negro woman, the former occupant of the house.

Firemen Answer 'Smoke Call' Today

An overheated oven this morning filled the kitchen with smoke at the Frank Glabb home, 1325 French street. Mrs. Glabb called the fire department.

Firemen found no fire, but a mass of badly scorched paint. They opened the windows, turned off the oven, and let the smoke clear away.

Strike. It appears that the Mexicans have worked a hardship on themselves in striking in that many will be unable to get their jobs back because in many cases their jobs have been filled by others. We expect to move out crop to market on time and in an orderly and regular manner."

RELIEF TOPIC TO BE AIRED

Supervisor W. C. Jerome, Santa Ana, today awaited a formal call from C. E. Grier, chairman of the San Bernardino county board of supervisors and acting president of the California Supervisors association to attend a conference July 24 to push for abandonment of SRA.

Grier announced today he is asking representatives of each county to meet July 24 in Sacramento. The announcement followed a demand from Grier to Governor Merriam that the latter "abandon the dual system of direct relief" in California.

Grier advocated sole administration of relief by county welfare departments under supervision of the state department of social welfare.

"Administration of direct relief has been wasteful and inefficient," Grier charged. "It has cost 25 per cent of all funds appropriated for administrative functions."

Jerome said here today that SRA was set up to coordinate state and federal relief expenditures, but that the funds now come solely from the state. Supervisors seek to have the money administered under state law rather than federal regulations in SRA, he said.

Elks Fleet to Make Visit Here

Two cars of the Elks lodge "purple fleet," making a goodwill tour from New York to the national convention in Los Angeles, will be at the Santa Ana Elks club July 10 at 5:45 p. m., it was announced today.

The cars will be escorted into the city by officers, and will remain here until 9 p. m., when they will go to Long Beach. The convention is scheduled for July 12-19 at Los Angeles.

MORE ABOUT ACCIDENTS

Saturday afternoon she was involved in an accident south of Anaheim that morning. The accident occurred when cars driven by Paul Stoycheff, 35, 323 West Fourth street, and Glenn W. Anderson, 16, Fullerton, collided. Mae Nye, 16, Fullerton, and George Potoff, 407 West First street, also were injured.

Evelyn Blackford, 26, Hawthorne, and two passengers were injured at midnight Saturday when her car collided with one driven by Alfonso Herrera, 30, Anaheim, near Buena Park. Riding in the car with Mrs. Blackford were her husband, Frank Blackford, 30, and her son, Frank, Jr., 2 1/2.

Ankle Broken

Cie Nakashima, 57, Anaheim, was cut and bruised Saturday afternoon when a car in which he was riding was involved in a collision near the county hospital. Driver of the car was T. Sugimoto, 59, Anaheim.

Driver Cited

Osmond Graetz, 36, Los Angeles, was cited by highway patrol officers Saturday afternoon when his car collided with one driven by Joseph A. Edison, 41, Buffalo, N. Y., at Carnation street and 101 highway. He was charged with driving across the center line and driving without a license.

Arthur Cady, Bishop, and Charles Freund, 508 North Olive street, were involved in a collision at Fifth and Parton streets Saturday afternoon. Neither was injured.

KIDNAP CASE POSTPONED

With their attorney, John Martell of Santa Ana, unable to attend court this morning, arraignment of Gerald Vance and Fulton Edgar DeBord on Lindbergh law kidnapping charges was postponed this morning in Superior Judge James L. Allen's court.

Donald Harwood, attorney, reported he was appearing in Martell's stead, but that defendants, facing possible death penalty or life imprisonment for allegedly kidnapping and shooting Harold Marshall, Laguna Beach taxi driver, were not ready to plead to the charges.

Martell was appointed by the court Friday to defend the kidnap suspects, but could not be located to appear at that time. Harwood reported Martell had been called to Los Angeles today.

"I want Martell to be here," commented Judge Allen as he reset the arraignment for Friday at 10 a. m.

Whispering together while waiting for court to convene, DeBord and Vance were separated by Billiff Frank Dawson, who ordered them to be silent.

Long-Kept Body Of Dead Cultist Is Missing

SALT LAKE CITY, (AP)—The Salt Lake Telegram said today the body of a woman kept since 1935 by a strange religious sect in the mountains of southeastern Utah has disappeared.

In a copyright story, the newspaper said the cynical contend the body has been buried; that the so-called truth seekers, led by Mrs. Marie M. Ogden, formerly of New York, N. Y., have "given up trying to bring the woman back to life."

But, it added, "Sister" Ogden and other cultists stoutly deny this.

"The work is going on," Mrs. Ogden was quoted as saying. "I am sure that I shall bring her back, that she will live among us. The body was moved in order that we could continue to live in peace."

The body was that of a woman who died in February, 1935. It had been kept in a room of the leader's home. There were regular, secret rites.

To Hold Hearing On Bus Question

Continuing its public hearings on the case of the Santa Fe transportation company in three southern California cities, the state railroad commission will sit in Santa Ana Thursday.

Richard G. Shultz, city councilman and former mayor of Huntington Park, is an outstanding witness in support of the Santa Fe proposals to inaugurate a one-ticket, bus-rail transportation service in the state at a flat one and one-half cents per mile rate.

Hearings will be held tomorrow in San Diego and Friday in Long Beach, with the possibility that a two-day hearing slated for San Bernardino may be transferred to Los Angeles, July 14 and 15.

To Explain Grand Canyon Geology

"Geology of the Grand Canyon" will be discussed by E. E. Behr, assistant manager of the Irvine ranch, at monthly meeting of the West Coast Mineralogical society, to be held at 7:30 p. m. tomorrow in the Isaac Walton cabin, Hillcrest park, Fullerton.

The evening's program will include a display of fluorescent minerals by Arthur C. Terrill, who will use a Reed and Miller ultraviolet lamp in the display.

All persons interested are invited by Terrill to attend.

To Exhume Body Of Rich Iowan

TIPTON, Ia., (AP)—The Cedar county board of supervisors today adopted a resolution authorizing exhumation of the body of Henry Ivers, whose death fortune brought treasure seekers to the Ivers farm near here. Already $213,500 has been found on the farm.

The board said it adopted the resolution after receiving "orders from the state department of health and advice from the attorney general's office."

REPORT GRASS FIRE

Evidently there were a few firecrackers that weren't shot off on Saturday. Some people doubt that. But one is thought to have been the cause of a grass fire reported on city property at 2371 Riverside drive this morning. The blaze had been put out before fire trucks arrived.

Elsie, Mae, Lucille and Billie colquitt, of LaGrange, Ga., have their birthday parties together. All were born on Aug. 11.

TAX ROLL IS SUBMITTED

County Assessor James Sleeper officially turned over the county assessment roll, showing valuations of all real and personal property in Orange county, to the board of supervisors at noon today.

The action, however, was merely a gesture in conformity with state law, and Sleeper and his assistants continued work this afternoon to establish the total figure for valuations. After considering two cases of veterans' exemption affidavits irregularly filed, the supervisors adjourned to meet in regular session tomorrow morning.

Donald B. McFarland of Laguna Beach and Los Angeles was allowed a veteran's exemption when he explained he had filed an affidavit, but that it had been returned because of a misunderstanding.

William W. Harding, who filed for an exemption shortly before noon, was asked to wait until the district attorney determines whether Friday night or noon to file is the deadline for such applications.

SINGLE TAX IN CANADA CITED

Single tax is flatly at variance with the two major economic principles which should govern taxation—ability to pay and benefits derived—declared George A. Raymer, secretary of the Orange County Tax council, following his return from a trip to British Columbia to study operation of the single tax system there.

The experiment has resulted in wholesale abandonment of vacant property, he found. Numerous cities, including North Vancouver and Prince Rupert, are now bankrupt and in the hands of receivers, he said.

Agitation to liquidate indebtedness by debt repudiation has begun, to enable bankrupt communities to readjust themselves after having great parcels of land dumped on them by citizens unable to pay the single tax on vacant property, Raymer said.

Finding that the single tax did not produce enough revenue for public needs, British Columbia province officials did not apply the measure full force, and two years ago were forced to reduce the tax rate on non-productive land from 50 mills on the assessed valuation.

$2000 FIRE AT YORBA LINDA

Tennis racquet manufacturing equipment and a new automobile went up in smoke early Saturday when fire destroyed a small shop and garage, and damaged two adjoining residences in the business district of Yorba Linda. Damage was estimated at $2000.

The tennis racquet shop, garage and automobile were the property of J. Smalley, and the adjoining residences were those of George G. Beale and D. Ake.

EXPORTING OF ORANGES IS OUTLINED

Growing importance of export trade in disposal of the Valencia orange crop was outlined in an article in the Farm Bureau News, being distributed today. The article, written by Charles W. Horn, manager of the market expansion division of Mutual Orange Distributors, follows:

Development of the export trade in citrus fruits from California and Arizona has progressed steadily during the last 15 years. The volume reached its peak during season 1934-35, when more than 3,500,000 boxes of citrus fruits were exported to foreign countries. In units of 462 boxes to the carload this volume represents 7600 cars. To and including June 6, the exports this season are approximately 1,000 cars less than for the same period last year.

Totals Told
Exports this season as reported to the distribution committee of the California-Arizona Orange-Grapefruit agency are 562 cars of navel; 1906 cars of Valencia, 514 cars of grapefruit, and in addition to the above several hundred carloads of lemons have gone to foreign markets.

All producing districts of California and Arizona participated in this business. Central California exported 119 cars of navel, 826 cars of Valencia and 155 cars of grapefruit; the desert district exported 78 cars of Valencia and 138 cars of grapefruit; Southern California, 452 cars of navel, 1002 cars of Valencia, and 217 cars of grapefruit. Total to date this season is 2975 cars of navel, 1009 cars of Valencia, and 1009 cars of grapefruit—less than the same period last season—the lighter shipments this season being occasioned by better domestic prices and smaller production.

Foreign Shipments
It is expected that it will be necessary to export for the balance of this season more than 50 per cent of the quantity that went forward last season. The European markets may be less receptive to large volume exports owing to increased competition from Brazil and South Africa, and to the fact that tree fruits, which last season were negligible owing to severe freeze in Europe during the month of May.

From November until May the competition of shipments from Palestine and Spain to European countries virtually precludes any volume exports from California and Arizona. Movement of the Spanish crop this season was expected virtually to cease by the first of June, but according to official records of the bureau of agricultural economics, Spanish oranges are still arriving in the

Here's One of Those 'Things in a Million' Cases

LONGVIEW, Wash. (P)—When a new family moved in across the street, C. A. Snow went over to pay his respects and was surprised to learn the householder's name also was Snow. The next minute he was still more surprised to meet his brother he had not seen in 40 years.

United Kingdom at the rate of over 100,000 boxes per week. These will taper off rapidly, however, to a close by the end of this month, by which time also Brazilian exports to the United Kingdom will doubtless decrease.

Brazilian Crop
The Brazilian crop is running very heavy to large sizes which, of course, has made an opening for the small Valencias from Southern California, but has caused severe competition for the Tulare county Valencias also this season were exceptionally large.

Since the opening of the Panama canal, steamer transportation has been developed continuously, until there is now sufficient refrigerated space available to move greater quantities at almost any season of the year than are justified by market conditions. This has had the effect at times of inviting excess export shipments, as the export market is available to all shippers, and the European buyers not, of course, being aware of the large volume to go forward, frequently purchase in advance large quantities.

Freight Rates
Freight rates for citrus have been reduced continuously, until now the export rate is a much more favorable one than the domestic rate. Prior to 1923 the export rate per box was $1.50; it is now 90 cents from port of Los Angeles to the United Kingdom and central European markets.

Prior to the autumn of 1920 there was no through steamer service for the handling of perishable fruits to European ports. Exports up to that time moved by rail to the Atlantic seaboard, thence transhipped on steamers operating out of New York. This method was not only expensive, but entailed extra transferring and handling with resultant deterioration and weakened condition of the fruit when it arrived at its final destination.

First Export

In the autumn of 1920 the Holland-American line and the Royal Mail Steam Packet company, after a careful study of this situation, established a service from Southern California to European ports by way of the Panama canal.

The first shipment of California oranges through the Panama canal to London made by any California shipper was made by the Mutual Orange distributors in March, 1921, and consisted of 2000 boxes of Pure Gold California Valencia oranges on the steamer "Eemdyk." The satisfactory condition of the fruit at time of de-

IOWA TOWNS RAVAGED BY FLAMES

REMSEN, Iowa. (P)—This fire-ravaged village and its neighbor, Oyens, faced today the task of bringing order out of their blackened chaos and of rebuilding on the wreckage of week-end blazes. National guardsmen continued to patrol Remsen, where business establishments which had extended over four blocks were in ruins and several score persons were homeless.

At Oyens, six miles west of here, a block of business houses and a number of residences were charred ruins. The grass fire which spread to its business district Saturday was estimated to have caused a loss of $70,000.

Remsen's loss was placed at upwards of half a million dollars. A firecracker lighted in a tent near a cafe was said to have started the flames.

POLICE REPORTS

Complaints from neighbors kept the police switchboard buzzing Saturday and Sunday, and officers were busy checking on reports about children shooting firecrackers. Two were brought to the station and lectured, and others were warned.

Girl Swallows Quarter; Dies

BOSTON. (P)—Mary Sugrue, 11, of Cambridge, who swallowed a quarter given her to buy fireworks, died today at the Massachusetts General hospital.

Hospital authorities said the child had developed a serious "chest condition" during the time the 25-cent piece was lodged in her esophagus. The coin later passed into her stomach.

PARTY HEADS RETURN TO CAMPAIGN

WASHINGTON. (P)—Amid indications of fast moving political action even through the dog days, the standard bearers of both major parties returned to their desks today.

President Roosevelt returned home on the yacht Potomac after his Virginia speaking trip.

Gov. Alf M. Landon of Kansas, back at Topeka after a vacation in the Colorado mountains, planned meetings with Representative Joseph W. Martin, Jr., the Republican eastern campaign manager, and former Gov. Frank O. Lowden of Illinois.

Landon to Speak

Farm problems, a subject expected to be emphasized in the Kansas acceptance speech at the Republican notification ceremonies at Topeka July 23, were to be discussed at the Landon-Lowden party Thursday.

Landon's schedule tomorrow includes an address before a joint session of the legislature which meets to initiate an amendment to the state constitution to permit participation in the federal social security program.

Activities of both Mr. Roosevelt and Governor Landon indicated to observers that, far from entering summer doldrums, the campaign in preparation for Nov. 3 was likely to continue with little abatement.

Mr. Roosevelt, in a talk with Postmaster James A. Farley today, was expected to go over in further detail plans for a whirlwind drive discussed in outline last week.

Into New Quarters

Fast and continuous activity also was indicated by the setting up of opposing campaign headquarters in New York.

The Democrats are moving their national offices to two floors in the Biltmore hotel on Thursday, while in the next block the Republicans will set up offices to direct their campaign in 20 eastern states.

Both Farley and John D. M. Hamilton, Republican national chairman, were expected to start work in New York this week. Farley is both state and national Democratic chairman.

The Rev. Charles E. Coughlin, Detroit radio priest and supporter of Representative William Lemke's Union party presidential campaign, entered New Jersey yesterday to make an unannounced address to officials of his National Union for Social Justice.

Session Closed

The session in Trenton, closed to press and public, was attended by 1300 officers of the units of the national union in Jersey.

Father Coughlin later said he was visiting various states to meet leaders of his movement. He urged officials to elect congressional candidates bearing the union's indorsement, and continued his attack against President Roosevelt.

"Roosevelt has placed a 35 billion dollar burden on you," he said to his followers, "and it has to be paid back by your labor."

Another week-end political development was a statement by George L. Berry, president of labor's non-partisan league, in which he said union leaders representing 2,000,000 votes had been enrolled to work for Mr. Roosevelt's re-election.

BELIEVE ART CRITIC WAS MURDERED

REDWOOD CITY. (P)—Seeking information about the mysterious death of Junius Cravens, art director and critic, authorities proceeded today on the theory he was slain.

With possibilities of accidental death or suicide were put forward by Sheriff James McGrath, a coroner's report indicated Cravens may have been killed by a powerful assailant.

Coroner William Crosby, who took charge of the body after it was discovered at the foot of an Ocean Beach cliff near here Saturday, said he was convinced Cravens was murdered.

Gives Murder Reasons

He pointed out that while the 35-year-old stage and screen art director's neck was broken and his face crushed, there were no bruises on other parts of the body. The lack of such bruises, he added, appeared to eliminate the possibility Cravens had jumped or fallen from the 100-foot cliff.

The coroner said he had received word that a brother, Albert Cravens, was sending a letter from Boston which might bear on the victim's recent actions and acquaintances.

Missing Four Days

Cravens, who was art critic for a San Francisco newspaper, was found dead four days after friends said he disappeared from his apartment in that city. The day before his supposed disappearance, he wrote a letter to Dr. James B. Sharp, WPA coordinator in San Francisco, resigning as superintendent of an art project.

Before coming to San Francisco about 10 years ago, Cravens directed the art work of several Hollywood screen productions.

Some fun, this is. Get up after a holiday week-end and stagger down to the office, where they greet you with the announcement that Paul Wright has gone vacationing, and it would be nice if you sat down at the sports editor's desk and started scintillating.

With a lot to scintillate over his week.

Second half of the National Night Ball league under way tonight, with Olive battling it out with Westminster, and Santa Ana-Huntington Beach, Anaheim-Orange following tomorrow night.

And every team in the league gunning for the Oiler, minus bombing Louis Neva.

Tomorrow night the County Night Ball league under way for its second half, City league double-header tonight, wrestling tonight, this and that tomorrow again.

Mentor Wright leaves nine sheets of closely typed instructions!

Bill Farquhar, son of James Farquhar, editor of the Huntington Beach News, cut himself a wide swath for the Fourth. Captured the free-for-all water scramble around the 2000-foot municipal pier for a beginner, and then just for fun took a second in the body-surfing contest. Bill used to paddle for the University of California.

How the grunt-and-growlers go! Lou Daro back today from the Orient, and we probably can expect some sizzling developments at the Highway 101 arena after the mat impresario gets into his swing.

But the best today was a four-leaf booklet, ornately decorated with true-life pictures, a la movie mag, of Dave Levin, "first Jewish mat king and unchallenged world's champion," presaging a Pacific coast invasion.

Levin, who is steered by Toots Mondt, ex-great of the padded square, pro-pooos swarthy Vincent Lopez, California's champ, as "commission-made." In fact, says he and Toots, virtually everyone but the Levin is commission-made, but he Yankee up through the ranks, at great risk to life and limb.

While we were still county editor Saturday and yesterday we took a tour of the county's aquatic sports spots, and found bathers so thick it was worth your life to venture into the surf.

At Corona Del Mar, despite the new and longer breakwater, combers start way out and pile up considerable speed on their way in to the beach. Here body surfing is the king of sports, and the water is black with human projectiles.

Ex-University of Oregon Paddler James Travis, now flying high at March Field for glory and a commission, was knocked colder than a proverbial wedge yesterday when a youngster on the crest of the wave found Travis in his way, yet stopped not.

It's probably the weather that makes swimming such a nice sport for columnizing. Getting back to Huntington Beach and its fourth, here's how the county boys made out in aquatic contesting:

Body surfing—Bob Reed of Santa Ana, first; Farquhar, second; Earl Conrad, Santa Ana, third.

Kyak races—Robert Scott, Fullerton, first; Ralph Marsden, Fullerton, second, and Paul Moore, Brea, third, in the 144-pound class. Over that class Melvinne Miller of Fullerton, first; Burton Sanders, Fullerton, second; Wilbur Scott, Placentia, third.

Three Fullerton gals, Billy Krons, Frances Foyle and Barbara Nye, in the order named, swept the feminine contingent's races.

OLYMPIC TESTS SHOW CLASS

NEW YORK. (AP)—About 300 athletes, picked on the basis of sectional tryouts or past performances, will compete for about 60 remaining places on the American track and field team, when finals are held Saturday and Sunday.

Already ten Olympians have been named as a result of final tests in four events, the marathon, 10,000-meter run, 50,000-meter walk and decathlon. There are 23 Olympic events.

The national A. A. U. championships completed Saturday at Princeton demonstrated that most of the Olympic favorites, along with a number of newcomers to stardom, are ripe for another record-smashing battle.

The latest pole vault sensation, 22-year-old George Varoff of the Olympic club, San Francisco, noisied himself over the bar at the new world's record height of 14 feet, 6 1/2 inches to make Uncle Sam forget that the previous record-holder, Yale's Keith Brown, isn't available. Varoff beat two consistent 14-footers, Earle Meadows and Bill Sefton of Southern California.

These three coast stars must yet reckon with stylish Dave Weichert of Rice Institute and Bill Gruber, Southern California veteran, who soared to record heights in 1932 and is making a fine comeback.

SAN PEDRO. (AP)—With Al Rogers Synnove in the van, five sloops sailed the 29-mile course from Santa Monica to San Pedro under the previous best time for six-meter class boats.

JITTERS GET BIG LEAGUE TEAMS

Cards Slip Into First Place As Cubs Bombarded; Yanks Whipped

By SID FEDER
Associated Press Sports Writer

There must be something about that National league lead to give a ball club the jitters as soon as it gets into first place.

Ever since the season started, it has been more or less the custom for a team to start faltering almost from the moment it landed in the driver's seat. First it was the Giants and now the Cardinals and Cubs.

A week ago, the Cubs climaxed a long uphill haul and took over the top. They lost immediately, and were back in second place again.

Phillies Take Fifth
But the gas house outfit no sooner was holding the lead than it, too, started slipping. The Cubs pulled out in front Saturday. Again the lead lasted just a day. Yesterday the pirates knocked Chicago off the top with a 4-2 victory, while the Cardinals slugged the Cincinnati Reds 8-6 and 17-7 to move in.

With the Cards' double victory stopping at least momentarily the forward surge of the rampaging Reds, the supposedly lowly Phillies entered their longest victory streak of the season, stretching their run to five straight yesterday over the Boston Bees, 7-6.

Those daffy Brooklyn Dodgers apparently forgot they were in the Polo grounds, where they're supposed to be jinxed, and clubbed the Giants, 3-1, despite Mel Ott's 15th homer.

Sox Still Third
The Washington Senators, too, did some forgetting. It must have slipped their minds that they were facing the murdering New York Yankees, that Ed Ruffing was pitching, and that the betting boys had just made the odds on the Yanks 1 to 4—highest in history—to take the pennant.

With Jimmy Deshong, a Yank castoff, on the mound for them, the Nats turned in a 9-3 victory. The Red Sox, finding the Athletics easy, came through with a double-header decision, 16-2 and 8-2, to hold on to third place.

The aroused Detroit Tigers stayed in second by walloping the Browns, 18-9. The up-and-down Cleveland Indians were up in the first game of a twin bill with the White Sox, 11-4, and then lost the nightcap, 4-2, before Johnny Whitehead's seven-hit pitching.

The aroosted Detroit Tigers stayed in second by walloping the Browns, 18-9. The up-and-down Cleveland Indians were up in the first game of a twin bill with the White Sox, 11-4, and then lost the nightcap, 4-2, before Johnny Whitehead's seven-hit pitching.

Ducks Take Braves In Double Bill; Oakland on Top
By the Associated Press
Oakland roosted at the top of the standings again today by virtue of twin wins over Sacramento while the erstwhile pace-setting Seattle Indians were suffering a double setback from the Portland Beavers in Sunday Coast league contests.

The week's outstanding baseball feat, however, was performed by Los Angeles, which broke into the .500 column by capturing seven out of eight games from San Diego. The Angels now are only 5 1/2 games out of first place.

The Seraphs, San Francisco Missions, Portland and Oakland won doubleheaders yesterday. Los Angeles trimmed San Diego, 3-1, 4-3; Portland shellacked the Indians, 6-1, 10-3; Oakland subdued the Solons, 4-3, 1-0, and the Missions triumphed over the San Francisco Seals, 8-5, 5-1.

NET TOURNAMENT OPENS
LAKE ARROWHEAD. (AP)—An array of net luminaries led by Frank Shields will play in a three-day invitation tennis tournament here July 10-11-12. Others include Alan Harrington, Dolf Muehlen and Count Carpanza.

The tussle will be keen for the remaining two Olympic places. The Southern California graduate, Al Olson, is a consistent 25-footer, but he has rivals in Kermit King, a newcomer from Pittsburg, Kans., who was runner-up to Owens for the N. C. A. A. title at 25-2 1/2; John Green of Harvard, Stanley Johnson of M. J. T. and Robert Clark, the decathlon champion from San Francisco.

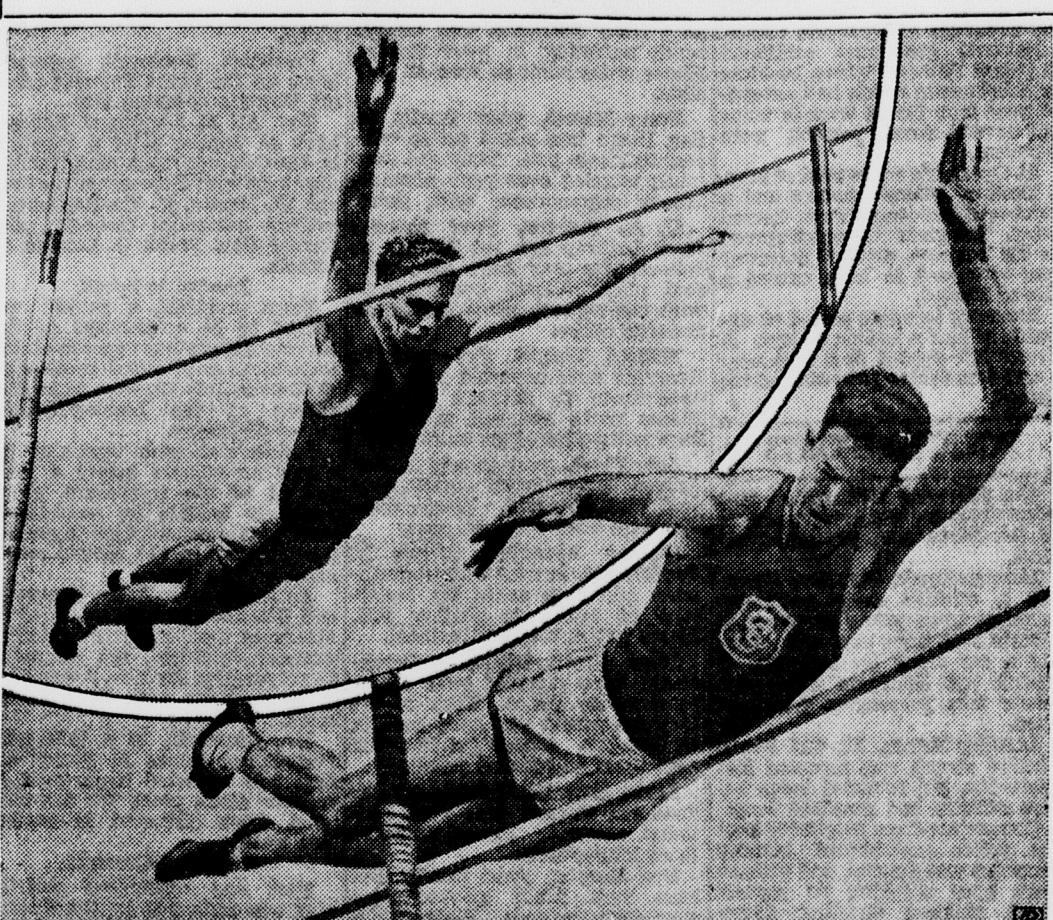

Japan offers the only threat to an American sweep in the pole vault. Nishida forced America's Bill Miller to clear a record Olympic height to win four years ago, thereby stimulating his countrymen to fresh deeds of vaulting valor. But the U. S. A. appears well-fortified to retain Olympic honors.

The Southern California pair, Bill Sefton and Earle Meadows, are the most consistent of the 14-foot class this year, but there are a half dozen other collegians with chances to vault into the Olympic picture.

VARGAS GETS BOOST
In all probability Ray (K. O.) Vargas, the Atwood Mexican middleweight, who annexed his third consecutive fight last week when he beat Larry Ledford at the Orange County Athletic club, will be elevated to main events starting Thursday night. An opponent is being sought for Vargas while Don Benzer is looking for a rematch with Wildcat Carter on the same card.

Japan Threatens U. S. Vaulters—Yank High-Jumpers Unchallenged

ANOTHER IN A SERIES OF DAILY STORIES

Up and Over—Uncle Sam's pole vaulting twins in action. Supreme in America, which is to say supreme in the world, Southern California's two stars may tie for the Olympic title. Bill Sefton (above) and Earle Meadows (below).

By ALAN GOULD
NEW YORK. (AP)—When the Olympic track and field argument comes down to a last-stand battle between Brea and Anaheim in the triple jump, since Earle Meadows, who has demonstrated his ability to out-jump or out-vault the world.

The only exception concerns the hop, step and jump. The United States has manifested little interest in the triple jump, since Earle Meadows, who has demonstrated his ability to out-jump or out-vault the world.

In the running broad and high jumps, as well as the pole vault, it's a red, white and blue bordered story. America has asserted world supremacy in these three specialties 26 times in 30 Olympic competitions.

U. S. Lost in '32
This country's winning streak in the high jump was broken for the second time in 1932, but it was not a particularly serious blow to our pride since the winner of a four-man jumpoff turned up in Duncan McNaughton, Canadian boy who developed his skill at Southern California. He's out of competition now.

The development of a sensational crop of negro jumpers is the main guarantee of American success in the Olympics this year. Cornelius Johnson, one of McNaughton's victims four years, has become the best in a group consistently flitting with 6 feet 9 inches in the high jump. Johnson won several duels this spring with Walter Marty, California holder of the world record of 6'9 1/2", as well as Ed Burke, the Margitte negro sophomore, who captured a record indoor contest with Johnson one night last winter.

Johnson, Burke and Marty appear the best Olympic bets, but the veteran George Spitz, Gilbert Cruter of Colorado, Dave Albritton and Mel Walker of Ohio State, and Al Treadwell of Temple all may figure in the final tests. Any trio that survives to make the Olympic team is liable to finish 1-2-3 for the U. S. A. at Berlin.

The loss of Eulace Peacock, Temple negro who did 26 feet 3 inches to become national champion, puts the broad jump issue squarely up to Ohio State's redoubtable Jesse Owens.

The tussle will be keen for the remaining two Olympic places. The Southern California graduate, Al Olson, is a consistent 25-footer, but he has rivals in Kermit King, a newcomer from Pittsburg, Kans., who was runner-up to Owens for the N. C. A. A. title at 25-2 1/2; John Green of Harvard, Stanley Johnson of M. J. T. and Robert Clark, the decathlon champion from San Francisco.

SECOND HALF NITE-BALL STARTS

Olive to Tangle With Aviators Tonight; Stars Tomorrow

Eyes of every manager in the National league circuit were fastened on the same object as the second half of the pennant race got under way today—the gon-falon for the first half championship, tacked to Huntington Beach's flagpole.

Tomorrow the remaining members of the six-club circuit swing into action. The object in each case is the same—beat Huntington Beach!

The Olive Mohawks will show their new strength tonight, with Ward Sheldon and Willard Bath expected to put the new life in the outfit. Ben Geiker will send Jack Dugan to the mound against Ewynn (Fuzzy) Errington of the Aviators.

All club managers are confident that without Larupping Louis Neva toiling on the pitcher's hill and slugging at the plate, Huntington Beach will be just another club in the second half, after making a walk-away of the first.

Santa Ana's Stars, with great pitching from Jimmy Coates and a well-balanced aggregation of stick-toters, are logical favorites to overhaul the beach outfit.

The second-half race will be run on a staggered schedule.

Charlie's Ready

Manager Charlie Grimm, leading the National league blasters for the annual all-star baseball game tomorrow, faces heavy odds at the plate as his bevy of highly paid stars are battling an average of 22 points below their opponents from the American league.

Tonight's brawl looms as a natural of the outstanding defensive workers in the mat game, and Pico has hung up a record of five straight since joining the Orange county vars.

Lutze wins his fights with science and hard work. Pico wins his with crushing elbow smashes and bull strength.

Less than two months ago the Senior came here and started his Pacific coast campaign with a bang, crushing Bill Sledge in short order. In a row since then he's dropped Bill Bartush, Casey Colombo, Thor Johnson and Dirty Dick Daviscount.

Meanwhile Lutze has been pursuing the even tenor of his way, waiting for a crack at Lopez and the crown. For the past five years Nick has been wrestling top-notchers, but something always has come between him and his big chance. Tonight he hopes to prove his right to another swat at Lopez by handing Pico his first defeat in 50 starts.

Lopez last week wired Promoter Sam Sampson tentatively agreeing to meet the winner of tonight's three-fall match here, later this month or soon after his return to this section from the east.

The 200-pound Japanese star, Oki Shikina, will make his first appearance in the local ring tonight when he tangles with that tough Russian, Count Casimir Shikina, originator of the Japanese double hiplock, has recently returned from a tour of triumph through the Orient and Antipodes.

Two one-fall bouts bring out favorites with Orange county wrestling fans. Steve Streich, the terrible Swede, will trade insults with Wildman (Goldlocks) Zinn, and Baby Bob Coleman, the scientific boy, will meet Pat McGill, the Balboa Island Irishman.

Until this morning McCarthy had two right-handers he could have started, but Tommy Bridges of the Detroit Tigers passed up the game because of a cold which forced him from the mound at St. Louis yesterday. He returned to Detroit with most of his teammates, leaving Mel Harder of Cleveland the American league's most eligible right-hander.

NEW YORK. (AP)—The New York Yankees are the shortest priced mid-season pennant favorites in baseball history, as far as Jack Doyle, well-known Broadway commissionaire, is concerned.

In announcing his mid-season odds today, Doyle quotes the Yankees as 1 to 4 to take the American flag and offers no odds on their finishing second and third.

The Tigers, Red Sox, Indians and Senators follow in that order, closely bunched. Detroit is 6-1 to win the flag, 7-5 to take second and 1-4 for third. The odds on Boston are 7-1, and on Cleveland and Washington, 10-1.

The Cubs, Doyle's pre-season favorites in the National league, retain that place by a slight margin over the Cardinals, being quoted at even and 1 to 3. The Cards are 7-5 to win and 1-2 to place.

The Pirates are rated third at 6-1 to win, followed by the Giants at 7-1 and the Reds at 10-1.

Yesterday's Stars
CHARLEY GEHRINGER, Tigers.—Hit homer and two singles, driving in four runs in win over Browns.

JIMMY DESHONG, Senators.—Held Yankees to eight hits for 9-3 victory.

BILL BRUBAKER, Pirates.—Batted in two of four runs against Cubs.

GEORGE WATKINS, Dodgers.—His two singles drove in two runs in 3-1 win over Giants.

MEL HARDER, Indians, and JOHN WHITEHEAD, White Sox.—Pitched winning games in double-header split.

TERRY MOORE, Cardinals.—Got four doubles and three singles to pace attack in double-header win over Reds.

WINNER GETS CRACK AT LOPEZ

Japanese Hiplock Star On Supporting Card Against Casimir

By BOB GUILD

More than victory will be sought when Juan Olquival Pico, wrestling-don's newest sensation, goes to the mat at the Highway House of Horrors tonight against Nick Lutze, the bronzed beauty from Venice.

Brick Dust

Here and There With The Journal's
Rambling County Editor
By T. N. (BRICK) GAINES

WELL, here we are! The short-term vacation has passed. Vacation's over, and the editorial wheels should start grinding again. (Should they or there'll be no more job, and therefore no more vacations.)

Just to clear the rambling conscience, I'd better confess where the amblings took the Brickdustish family during the past fortnight. Nothing spectacular—just travelings here and there, with which, from time to time, the suffering reader will probably be attacked when the memory is straightened out, and things are running smoothly again.

First discovery during the period of rest was that traveling is easy. One merely sits in the car until the right place comes along, and then pulls proper levers to stop the critter. Then there you are!

Slightly warm running through the desert to Bishop, where the automatic family conveyance was tenderly treated by one "Hoppy" Hopkins, doubtless known to many Anaheim and Fullerton residents. He lived around here for many years. Then onward to Virginia Lakes, with the borrowed tent pitched on the banks of Trumbull Lake at an altitude of 9600 feet.

The fond reader will no doubt notice that no word has been said about Trouticus Tremendous, much vaunted specimen presented by Bob Guild last week. After some consideration, I'm going to make good old Trouticus wait for a day or so, until I recover my breath.

It should suffice right now to remark that my funny specimen will break all tall trout tales when he's finally uncovered. He's going to make Marcus McCullen's jackrabbits giggle like some inferior brand of flea. But that'll come later.

But, just as a word to the trout sucker, things could be a lot better in the high mountains. High water, mostly, is the trouble. The fish are all overred, and display very little interest in anything short of flies—either wet or dry flies seem to be okay. Lots of little fellows, six to eight inches long, but that's all.

Fish and Game Inspector C. H. Bauder suggested Virginia Lakes to us as an ideal vacation spot, and I'd like to pass along the suggestion. It's rather crowded—perhaps the inspector told others, too, but it's very fine. Eleven lakes in the neighborhood, as well as assorted streams. Nice government camp ground at Trumbull Lake, with stoves, in everything. The only drawback to the country seemed to be the afternoon storms—every day the wind'd blow and the rain'd rain and the campers'd curse.

The lake country's 14 miles south of Bridgeport, with paved road all the way from Orange county, all except the last six miles.

Go ahead! It's only 400 miles right to the lakes!

When the streams became too serious, the editorial family departed. We chose Sonora pass, which is above Bridgeport, and comes out at Sonora, on the other side of the Sierras. The road had been opened the day before and we were one of the first parties to pass through, but the route was well cleared, although in places the snow towered many feet above the car.

Thence for a sightseeing trip through the Mark Twain country—Angel's Camp, Chinese Camp, and such places, before going on toward Yosemite.

In the famous valley we gazed three times, looked several more, and scrambled. Too many people. Yosemite's scenery is the most wonderful I've ever seen, but if a person'd stop to do a little gazing in awe, a horde of tourists would, like as not, shout to clear the way, they wanted to get through.

That part of the situation, and the thousands of campers, weren't so bad, but then I saw taxicabs, and barber shops, and decided that I could pitch my tent at Fourth and Main in Santa Ana and have about as good a time.

And so to the south fork of the Merced river, on the way home, where fishing was a little, but not much, better. On the south fork of the big stream there aren't any bears to eat folks' groceries. A few campers—some from Santa Ana, but I didn't hear any names—and there's swimming to add to the other mountain sports.

And here's a word of advice to folks going to Yosemite for the first time—if they're turning off at Fresno. Go by way of Bass Lake. I didn't, but the road couldn't be nearly as bad as the other choice, which runs through Coarse Gold, even if it tried. On the map both routes look the same, but of all the up-and-down, rough, dusty, washboard and otherwise generally cussed roads I've ever been on, the latter is easily the winner of all prizes.

However, I fished on 12 of the 14 days of the vacation. Which, although probably not a record, is a great satisfaction, anyway!

I just finish a recital of, to me, great travelings, when my kid

54 SAVED AS WAVES RIP COAST

31 AIDED BY GUARDS AT NEWPORT

Angry Sea Traps Bathers As 100,000 Jam Coast For Holiday

Battling one of the heaviest surfs reported along the county coast for years, lifeguards rescued at least 54 persons from death in pounding waves over the Fourth of July week-end as a crowd estimated at 100,000 filled beach communities.

Prompt action of guards in assisting swimmers from the water before they were in need of medical treatment was credited by officials for the remarkable record of not a single death by drowning on the county's coast.

Aid 31 at Newport

Thirty-one swimmers were aided by guards in the Newport-Balboa area, it was reported today from the office of Fire Chief Frank Crocker, who also heads the lifeguard division. Members of the county's force said today that the city's inshore squad enjoyed one of the quietest holidays in history, with not a single swimmer treated by the rescue squad.

J. H. Collett, 7757 Main street, Los Angeles, was dragged unconscious from the surf yesterday morning by lifeguards at Huntington Beach, after he was overcome by the high waves. A telephone call to Huntington Beach brought Bud Higgins and Clair Van Hoorbeck to the scene with special resuscitation equipment and the unconscious man was soon reported out of danger.

12 Saved at H. B.

Twelve swimmers were pulled from the surf at Huntington Beach by lifeguards today, which had been doubled by Capt. Higgins. Three exhausted men were rescued when spectators threw life saving equipment from the pier, it was reported.

At Laguna Beach 10 swimmers were caught beyond the breaker line as a sudden undertow struck the coastline, but were assisted to shore by lifeguards in rowboats before they were overcome. Laguna residents reported one of the greatest crowds in the history of the community, with hundreds of families seeking week-end accommodations turned away by hotel and apartment house owners.

Friends Feted At M. C. Party

MIDWAY CITY.—Mrs. Mary Pritchett entertained Mr. and Mrs. Charles Shamburg and Mrs. Anna Staley, Los Angeles, and Mr. and Mrs. H. O. Chamberlain, Westminster, at a dinner party on July Fourth.

Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Howard, accompanied by Mr. and Mrs. Marshall Hall of Whittier, spent the week-end in Fresno.

Mrs. E. L. Flagg, who has been spending the past year in South Bend, Ind., will return to her home on Huntington Beach boulevard this month.

Mrs. Murray Harrison and her daughter, Joan, Palm Springs, former residents of Midway City, are guests of Mr. and Mrs. Hugh Harrison on Harper street.

15,000 HEAR PENSIONER HIT F. D. R.

Dr. Townsend and 'Share the Wealth' Chief Talk at Pasadena

LOS ANGELES, (AP)—Dr. Francis E. Townsend was home today with a threat of a "peaceful uprising" which would depose congress and President Roosevelt.

Accompanied by the Rev. Gerald E. K. Smith, spokesman for the "Share the Wealth" movement of the late Sen. Huey P. Long, the founder of the old age pension plan arrived yesterday to address a gathering of 15,000 of his followers in the Pasadena Rose bowl.

Townsend leaders said it was the largest meeting ever held in behalf of the movement.

Ultimatum to Borah

Afterward Smith, saying he spoke for Dr. Townsend as well as himself, declared the pair had no intention of seeking a conference with Sen. William E. Borah of Idaho.

"If Senator Borah wants our support in his race for re-election to the senate he will have to come out of the mysterious cave where he's been hiding and say exactly where he stands on the communistic dictatorship at Washington," Smith said.

He added the old age pension and Share-the-Wealth supporters hold the balance of power in Idaho, and promised:

"If Borah will say where he stands, we will be very positive in our attitude toward him."

Attacks Democrats

Smith, in the principal speech at the Rose bowl rally, attacked the national Democratic administration vigorously between drinks from a three-gallon water pail on the speaker's stand.

He charged that George Highley, local Townsend leader, and R. E. Clements, former national secretary of the old age pension movement, "were on the payroll of James A. Farley at $1000 per month, with the promise of a $50,000 bonus if they broke up the Townsend movement."

He declared "the raw deal must not rule again," and added:

"Prize ring methods have been substituted for statesmanship when Roosevelt announces his fake social security act which will communize industry after absorbing more than $100,000,000 from business firms."

Winner in Court

Millicent Rogers Salm Balcom, daughter of the late Col. Henry Huddleston Rogers, won a court battle at Riverhead, N. Y., against the claims of her stepmother, Mrs. Pauline V. Rogers, for restoration of dower rights to the huge Rogers oil fortune. Mrs. Balcom is heiress to a third of the estate's income. (Associated Press Photo)

LOSES FIGHT FOR ROGERS FORTUNE

RIVERHEAD, N. Y., (AP)—Mrs. Pauline V. Rogers, comely 42-year-old widow of Col. Henry Huddleston Rogers, today lost her fight in surrogate's court to obtain dower rights in the huge Rogers fortune.

The decision was not announced by Surrogate Robert S. Pelletreau in open court, and none of the principals to the legal tussle over the $16,000,000 estate, nor their attorneys, were present. Under the ruling, filed with his clerk, the surrogate refused to set aside the waiver to her dower rights.

Her bequest from the estate remains at $100,000 outright and a sum roughly estimated at $125,000 as an annual income from the estate.

Mrs. Rogers' fight to obtain her dower rights in the $16,000,000 estate of Colonel Rogers was based on her claim she signed a waiver, in January, 1934, of those rights without realizing what she was signing.

The widow, who married Colonel Rogers in August, 1933, testified that before she signed the waiver, her late husband's lawyer, Adrian H. Larkin, told her it would not jeopardize her rights in the estate. She signed the paper without reading it, she said, because she considered Larkin a good friend and relied on what he told her.

Negro's Two Wives Lose Out in His Estate

RALEIGH, N. C. (AP)—Tyler Dunlap, negro, had two wives when he died.

It was up to J. Dewey Dorsett, chairman of the industrial commission, to decide which spouse should collect compensation.

He ruled:

The first wife left Dunlap three years after their marriage and therefore was not entitled to compensation; nor was the second wife because her marriage was bigamous.

The money will go to Dunlap's child.

S. A. GIRL TO COMPETE IN RODEO

Betty Timmons Selected As Salinas Entry for Orange County

In her black-and-white western outfit, Betty Timmons, 15-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Howard Timmons, Tustin, yesterday was acclaimed as the most outstanding Orange county junior horsewoman in the Fourth of July rodeo held Saturday in Huntington Beach.

Departs July 14

Betty was to file her official entry blank with rodeo authorities today. On July 14, she and her parents will leave for Salinas, with high hopes that the accomplished young rider will be named rodeo queen, after riding competition scheduled for July 15.

In Saturday's rodeo, the girl rode her white horse, "Eagle," with a silver-mounted saddle and bridle belonging to Mrs. James Irvine. She will appear with the same outfit at Salinas.

Judges Listed

Judges of the July 4 competition were Mrs. Otto McClure, Santa Ana; A. D. Moody, Fullerton; and Mr. Pyles, Los Angeles. All three are members of El Rodeo riding club.

Selection was made upon the basis of horsemanship, personal charm and scholarship. Miss Gay Thwaite was another contestant for the honor.

U. S. Steps Into Steel Union War

WASHINGTON. (AP)—Warning that industrial warfare threatens, the government stepped into the steel picture today as the struggle over unionization in the $5,000,000,000 industry headed rapidly into its first crucial phases.

With John L. Lewis spurring the drive to organize all 500,000 steel workers into one big union in defiance of the bitter opposition of employers, the national labor relations board reopened a fight in the courts to force steel companies to accept the national labor relations act as a means of keeping peace.

The board announced its was petitioning the federal circuit court of appeals at New Orleans today in a new effort to enforce the act against the big Jones and Laughlin Steel Corporation.

FRANKLIN D. ROOSEVELT: From Hyde Park to the White House

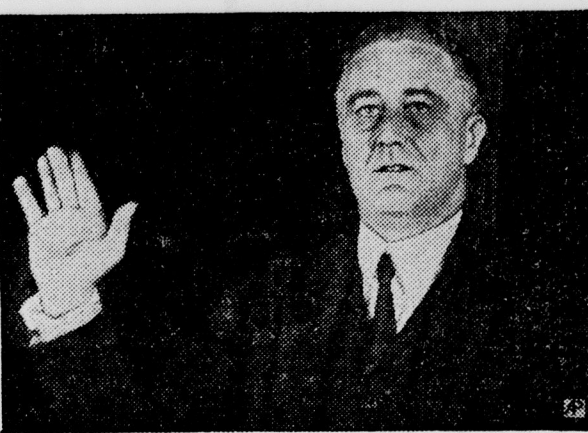

Four years later, at Houston, Franklin D. Roosevelt again placed the name of Alfred E. Smith before the Democratic convention, and this time he was nominated. Roosevelt returned to Warm Springs, Ga., to rest and it was there that word first came that in the state convention back home they were planning to draft him to succeed Smith as governor.

Roosevelt was reluctant to accept the nomination. He felt holding political office or waging a campaign, for the time being, was out. There is a story that a friend, in a telephone conversation from New York, urging that he make the race, said: "There is every likelihood you will be elected." "Yes," Roosevelt replied, "that's the hell of it."

Roosevelt was nominated, and the rest is told in the history of election of 1928. Smith lost New York state to Hoover, but Roosevelt was elected by a narrow margin. His success in the face of an overwhelming national Republican victory marked him at once as a political force of much more than state importance. In a series of conferences, one of which is shown here, Governor Smith explained the affairs of the state to Governor-elect Roosevelt who shortly succeeded him.

When Roosevelt was inaugurated (he is showing taking the oath of office) he stressed emphatically his hope for amicable relations between the Democratic executive branch and the state's Republican legislature. Although things went along smoothly at first, the hope was soon blasted in a resumption of the battle which Governor Smith had had to wage with the legislature for four years. Often Roosevelt was forced to go to the state's high court to gain points in his program.

WILL CREATE PUBLICITY FUND

Tax Rate Cut in Offing On Basis of Present Assessed Value

The city council tonight is scheduled to adopt a $577,825 budget for Santa Ana's ensuing fiscal year. Final reading of an ordinance creating a city publicity fund also is expected tonight.

Members of the council today said there would be no changes of any importance in the budget as previously announced, unless unexpected developments take place. On the basis of the budget as set up, and assuming Santa Ana has an assessed valuation equal to that of last year, a tax rate slash will be in prospect.

During the past year the budget was $606,714. The tax rate was $1.55.

The budget as set up at present is lower than for any year since 1926, with the exception of 1933-34 and 1934-35. The estimate includes $12,000 for salary increases for city employees, and a tentative figure for repair of the joint outfall sewer.

The publicity fund ordinance scheduled for passage tonight provides that revenue shall come from city business license fees. The ordinance was given its first reading at the last meeting of the council.

Poets' Corner

This poem was published in FIRST THE BLADE.

His teachers, Thomas Glenn and Mrs. Robert Northcross, predict a future for the young man along this line.

STARS

Once Jupiter proclaimed unto all men

That he who best could paint the stars in words

Would win the blessing of the starlight gods!

Men said that they were like . . .

Candles in a cathedral dome;

Goldfish in a blue transparent bowl;

A vast celestial city during night;

White daisies in God's pastures;

The eyes of the moon's children;

White ships upon the sea;

And torches of the angels in the sky.

Among the wisest men of earth

One still remained to speak.

Who said "The stars are so supremely beautiful

That to liken them to anything but stars

Is treason to their beauty. I say,

"The stars are like the stars each night in heaven!"

And lo, he felt the blessing of the gods!

Military Uniforms Add to Impressiveness of Afternoon Wedding in Tustin

Service Is Read in Garden

Elizabeth Roehm and Lt. Godfrey Speich Exchange Vows

Plighting her troth in a beautiful garden setting, Miss Elizabeth Roehm, attractive daughter of Mr. and Mrs. E. R. Roehm, of Newport road, Tustin, made a lovely bride yesterday when she was united in marriage with Lieut. Godfrey Speich, son of Mrs. Cerna Speich of Copenhagen, Denmark.

The double ring ceremony was performed by Captain Fee, army chaplain, standing beneath a large tree and before a screen of pepper bushes.

As the bride approached on the arm of her father, preceded by her bridesmaid, Lieutenant Speich and his attendant, Capt. W. M. Thomas, stepped forward to meet them.

Bride in White
The bridal gown of filmy white georgette, with finger tip veil draped from a small cap of white violets, enhanced the brunette beauty of the bride, whose bouquet was white roses with a shower of lilies of the valley.

Her attendant, Jean Gaspar of Santa Ana, was lovely in pale pink sheer material with aqua blue accessories and a bouquet of pink Briarcliff roses and pale blue delphinium.

Uniforms Are Worn
The bridegroom and his attendant, who is his commanding officer, and the chaplain, all wore their army uniforms, contributing to the impressiveness of the scene.

Adding to the natural beauty of the garden were potted palms and boxwood, and inside the house were large baskets of pink and white larkspur.

Reception Follows
Mrs. Roehm, mother of the bride, groomed in green linen lace, with a corsage of gardenias, received the guests. Her little granddaughter, Margaret Roehm, assisted during the afternoon.

At the refreshment table, after the service, the bride cut the first slice of the wedding cake with her husband's sword, in accordance with time-honored tradition in the army.

Mrs. W. R. Sylvester, in flowered blue chiffon, and Mrs. George Paul, jr., in hand-made silk crocheted lace of pale pink, both aunts of the bride, finished cutting the cake, and Kappa Delta Phi sorority sisters of the bride assisted in serving.

Mrs. A. W. Getchell, the bride's grandmother, was present at the wedding and reception, wearing green lace.

Two Rings Used
Rings used in the ceremony were unusually beautiful, the bride's a platinum hoop with a double row of diamonds, and the bridegroom's a plain onyx and gold band with diamond inset, the bride's gift to her husband.

His gift to her was a new sedan, in which they will drive to San Francisco on their honeymoon. They will be at home, after August 1, at La Cordova apartments, 406 Wellington street, Santa Ana.

The bride's going-away outfit was a smart, reversible cape suit of a red, blue and tan plaid, with blue taffeta blouse and cape lining, and harmonizing accessories.

The new Mrs. Speich was graduated from Tustin High school, and attended Whittier college. For several years, she has been head bookkeeper at the Security National bank of Santa Ana.

From Denmark
Lieut. Speich, a graduate of the College of Commerce, Copenhagen, Denmark, came to America on a scholarship from the department of commerce in his native country to study foreign conditions.

This first visit to America was pleasant enough to draw him back again, and he soon became a citizen of this country. After joining the United States army, he served in several localities, Hawaii, and just previous to coming to Orange county, the Presidio, San Francisco.

He is now first lieutenant in the O. R. C. second in command at the Veterans' COC camp at El Toro.

More than one hundred and fifty guests were present at the lovely outdoor ceremony, and the bride and groom received beautiful wedding gifts, among them a set of flat silver from the family.

WILSONS SAIL TO CATALINA WITH GUEST PARTY
Snowy sails filled and swung 'round in the breeze Friday evening as Mr. and Mrs. L. R. Wilson headed their yacht, "Lestelle," for Catalina island, their destination for the Fourth of July.

Aboard the slim vessel were Mr. and Mrs. George Daws and Mrs. and Mrs. Warren Lampman, Anaheim, and Louis Tadlock, guests of the Wilsons.

Dipping in the ocean billows not far away was the "Heydard," yacht of the Robert Landers, Los Angeles friends of the Wilsons. With their party, the Landers accompanied the Orange county group to Catalina, meeting on the island to celebrate Independence day.

DELEGATE TO BE FETED BY CLUB
As a farewell courtesy to E. A. Cox before he leaves for the second national Townsend convention in Cleveland, a pot-luck supper and covered dish dinner is being planned by Townsend club No. 5 for tomorrow night, in the Richmond Avenue Methodist church, Richmond and Parton streets.

Dinner will be served at 6:30 o'clock, followed by the program and final instructions for the delegate. Each member is to bring his favorite dishes for supper, and individual table service.

Cox has served as secretary of the club for the past year, and was recently elected sole delegate to the convention from Club No. 5.

'TOURING HOUSE' TRIP PLANNED
Forming their own small auto caravan, with "touring houses" attached, nine Santa Anans will set out Thursday morning for a six-weeks vacation, camping in Yellowstone and Glacier national parks before returning by the coast route.

In the party will be Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Prothero and their four children, Mr. and Mrs. Dan Whisler and Mrs. Nannie Meyers.

Parties For Aiding Girls Is Y.W.C.A. Purpose

(This is the ninth in a series of articles telling of Santa Ana women's business, professional, fraternal, service and social organizations. Watch for the tenth next week.—Editor.)

Santa Ana's Young Women's Christian association is an outgrowth of the movement started in 1924 by Ralph Smedley of the local Y. M. C. A., who felt that the fine equipment at the building should be placed at the disposal of women of the city as well as the men.

Mrs. R. R. Russick set up the first activity organized by a committee of 15 women who represented various interests of the community. She planned an athletic program which included use of the Y. M. C. A. swimming pool for one day each week. After an absence of some time, the committee's plans were shown, Mrs. Russick continued the work for approximately six years.

Miss Nancy Elder was chosen in 1925 to be first secretary of the Y. M. C. A. following the decision of the provisional committee to organize. Miss Elder served in this capacity until her marriage in 1934 to Theron B. Clark, registrar of the University of Southern California.

Her ability in pioneer enterprises led to formation of Wrycende Maegden, an organization for young business women, the beginning of Girl Reserve work, and aiding in adult educational activities.

Miss Mary Howard, present executive secretary of the Y. W. C. A., assumed supervision of these activities in 1934, with the assistance of Miss Mary Porter, who directs the Girl Reserve program carried on in junior and senior high schools and elementary schools.

To Miss Howard's desk each day come troubled or happy Santa Ana women and girls, bringing their social or economic problems to be adjusted, or coming to thank her for solutions she has effected.

Experience in individual and group work, having an extensive background gained as founder of the St. Louis and Toledo recreation projects and as leader in Y. W. work in other eastern cities, Miss Howard takes a vital interest in the problem of each person who comes to her office, and applies her ability and sympathy in aiding each.

Miss Mabel McFadden, active in Santa Ana women's business, service and cultural organizations, heads the present board of directors. Serving with her are Mesdames Ray Adkinson, T. Douglas, S. H. Finley, Dixon W. Guthrie, Hugh Gerrard, J. C. Gardiner, John Henderson, Fred Jayne, A. B. Jesse, Boyd Joplin, Fred Ferrey, Cotton P. Mather, A. J. McFadden, C. F. Smith, K. H. Sutherland, and the Misses Mary Ford, Genevieve Humiston, Rowena Newcomb and Vaughn E. Fumb.

Camps and conferences for week-ends and summer periods are features of the programs for all organizations affiliated with the Y. W. C. A. Classes are maintained in handicrafts, dancing, dramatics, and other interest groups for girls and young women.

Such outings are held at a camp ground near Mojoka's home, and summer camps are held at Catalina island or at the Y. M. C. A. camp in the San Bernardino mountains. Conferences are held annually at Asilomar.

The airy lounge, kitchen, dining room and equipment of the Y. W. C. A. at Fifth and Main streets are kept open six days a week, from 9 a. m. to 6 p. m. All women of the city are welcomed whenever they wish to rest or eat there.

Such organizations as Die Tante, a dancing club for young people, church groups and others use the rooms frequently, when they are not needed for association activities. Only a small charge is made to cover light and janitor expenses.

MARRIED AT WEDDING CHAPEL
Corona Del Mar was the mecca for many Santa Anans on the Fourth, several groups making up picnics for the day at the beach.

One party included Dr. Hubert B. Nall and Mrs. Nall and Frances and Hubert Nall, Mr. and Mrs. Paul Ragan and Bruce and Terry Ragan, and Mr. and Mrs. Joe Danziger, all of Santa Ana, and Mr. and Mrs. Harry Welsh of Fullerton.

ARMESSES CLUB
Mrs. Ray Graham will be hostess Wednesday evening at her home, 1429 South Garvey street, entertaining members of Armeses club, composed of wives of Scouts. The women meet while their husbands are attending lodge.

Miss Eleanor Buckles presided at the piano, playing the wedding marches and soft wedding music. Following the ceremony, the bride's sister, Mrs. L. S. ## Mary Stoddard

Comparisons Inadvisable, Except to Aid in Self-Adjustment to Life-Partner

By MARY STODDARD

Comparisons are sometimes odious. Husbands and wives should be careful not to do too much comparing in the early years of their marriage, especially. For instance, is it fair for a man to look disapprovingly at his bride's hot cakes or biscuits aren't done to the brown turn that mother's were? And does it promote the peace and happiness of a home when a wife looks at her husband, who has his nose buried in a magazine and reflects sadly, "Dear old dad wouldn't do that?"

Dear Miss Stoddard: I would like to write my experience to "Meal Ticket."

When I was married my hopes were so full of happy plans for our future. My girlhood home was a happy place. My parents so kind, so naturally I thought every home was like mine.

It would take pages to start from my wedding day, so I will only state a few things. Whenever I saw my husband before we were married he was always pleasant, but after the ceremony gradually I realized his unfortunate disposition.

I tried every way to overlook his faults. With him money was all that made any difference. That's all he thought of. The children and I were nothing to him. I was a good housekeeper, a good cook and kept the children and myself neat.

What a difference there was in Dad and him. When he was home he was hurried in newspapers and magazines—no time to talk—no time for the children. I used to get so hungry to talk and longed for a little attention, but work and money went ahead off life.

Then by slow degrees life lost the rosy hues. Hope died and with it love—that deep love I had on my wedding day took wings. My plans were shattered to the four winds. We lived like this for 32 years. Our children are grown and married and six months ago my husband passed on.

On his death bed he regretted his married life and wished he had been more attentive to me and the children. It relieved me that he really admitted that he made a mistake of thinking money was the main thing.

Now these last six months I have taken my first comfort in the 52 years—my first rest and peace of mind.

There are many unhappy mismatched couples and it's the biggest sin to live such an unhappy life. Divorce is no disgrace and if I had my life to live over again I would stay single and happy. At least one is free to go and come at will. Of course a happy married life is a beautiful thing and that is the way this life should be, but with one pulling one way and another, it's best to make a change.

MRS. PLEASANTS ENTERTAINS IN NEW HOME
Mrs. E. J. Pleasants, who has moved from Santiago canyon to Orange, entertained recently at her first dinner party in her new home at Palmyra and Olive streets.

Her guests, seated at an attractively appointed table, were Mrs. Ida Blee, Mrs. Robert Blee, Miss Mabel Blee, Mrs. Carrie Flagg and daughter, Holly; Mrs. A. Nicholson, Mrs. Newton Pierce, all of Santa Ana, and John Ware of Simi, Calif.

Mrs. Pleasants is a pioneer of Orange county, and once lived where Madame Modjeska made her home, at Arden.

The guests were all old-time friends, the group enjoying the evening recalling early events.

SHOWER HONORS LUCILE SMITH
Several of the week's parties have been centering around the approaching nuptials of Miss Lucile Smith, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. R. Smith of 1222 South Ross street, and Coy T. Maret, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Maret of 1469 Orange avenue.

Last Thursday, Miss Ann Detweiler, a school chum of the bride-to-be, entertained at an evening party and miscellaneous shower for Miss Smith, the group presenting their gifts to her after an evening of playing hearts.

Dainty refreshments with appointments in keeping with the bridal theme were served at a late hour to the following:

Miss Smith, the honored guest, and her mother, Mrs. J. R. Smith, and sister, Miss Mary Elizabeth Smith; Mrs. U. A. Detweiler, mother, and Miss Doris Detweiler, sister of the hostess; Mrs. Audrey Summers, Mrs. William Ellison, and the Misses Lula Belle Garret, Evelyn Coffman, Dorothy Hoffmann, Ethel Duckett, Margaret Bottruff, Moreta Weethe, Edna Gammel, and the hostess.

Date of the wedding has not been announced by Miss Smith, who is a graduate of Santa Ana High school, but it is understood that it will be in the near future. Mr. Maret is also a graduate of the local schools and both he and his fiancée have attended Bible Institute in Los Angeles.

Mrs. Richards had been a resident of Santa Ana for a number of years and was a sales clerk in the Bell Dry Goods store. She resided at 1607 West Third street. After a honeymoon trip north, Mr. and Mrs. Richards will make their home in Beverly Hills, where the bridegroom is in the transfer business.

Mr. and Mrs. A. G. Flagg of 1320 North Broadway entertained on the Fourth of July with their annual barbecue dinner, inviting guests for 5:30 o'clock in the afternoon.

One long table was set in the garden with a green cover, a napkin and with a pottery bowl of yellow and orange zinnias as a centerpiece. Pottery dishes in various colors added to the artistic effect.

Steaks were prepared at the barbecue grill in the garden, and were served with a delicious meal.

Following dinner, fireworks were displayed, principally for the pleasure of the granddaughter, small daughter of the Riley Hubbers.

Later in the evening, an indoor game of contract was enjoyed at two tables.

Guests at the delightful affair were Judge Emerson J. Marks and Mrs. Marks, the judge's son and daughter-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Adrian Marks; Mr. and Mrs. Huber and daughter, Linda; Wayne Williams of Los Angeles, and Miss Jimmie Flagg. Mrs. Huber and Miss Flagg are daughters of the hosts.

Exercise Muscle Fibers

By Claude North Chrisman, D. D.

Are any of you interested in marionettes? Clever and delightful as their performances are, I have never seen any designed so that the designer was able to conceal the fact that every movement was controlled by strings.

The marvel of the human marionette we call ourselves lies first in the way the multitude of controlling muscle fibers are hidden from sight.

Yet all the 200 or more bones we each possess are not only tied together, but are wonderfully guided and controlled by the fibrous strands we call muscles. These strands must be at the same time both strong and elastic.

It is the condition of the muscles more than anything else that indicates the advance of age. The effort to ward off the appearance of age keeps some folks following some sort of exercise that will spell the difference between elastic and rigid muscles.

The normal chest arrangement has 12 ribs on a side, each one springing from a projection on the dorsal vertebrae or the backbone. The upper seven are connected to the breastbone, while other broad bands of muscular cartilage extend up over the shoulders and down the upper arm. From the lower ribs a whole sheaf of muscles reach up to the breastbone, to the breast bone. All this arrangement makes a sort of barrel in which the most vital of our organs function. The ribs lie rather close together and make a protective wall.

Besides these, there are the special outposts of the spinal column in the back, the shoulders at the top, and the arms hanging at the side. Take note that the muscles controlling all these parts must expand and contract with every breath. It would be impossible for these very vital organs—the heart, lungs, and large blood vessels—to do their work if their housing in the bony structure of the body were not allowed sufficient muscular play to provide for all necessary compensation.

A lot of you still think we are only fussy when we keep urging you to breathe deeply, to exercise, to get out in the open where you move your arms about freely. This explains why games that seem to use only the upper body like billiards or croquet, or even bowling are recommended to those who do not care for golf or tennis or volleyball.

Any exercise that involves stretching the muscles of the chest, upper arms and ribs, helps to keep the inner mechanism working freely.

Eat Your Way To Health

By JACQUELINE HUNT

Beauty is rare and precious, but it is not nature's gift to a few fortunate, as many women within the reach of nearly every woman, for beauty depends primarily on buoyant health—and health in turn depends on the raw materials with which the body has to build—in other words, the diet.

Many of you realize that something is amiss in your diet, but you are not sure what it is. You know that a balanced diet includes vegetables, meat, cereal, fruits, milk and fresh, raw fruits, but you include all of them, but not in the right proportions.

A typical day's diet begins with a large glass fruit juice or stewed fruit, fresh eggs prepared in any favorite way and whole-wheat toast or French toast, marmalade and coffee. For luncheon, a large salad of fresh fruit or vegetables, bran muffins, whole-wheat bread or rye crackers, fresh or stewed fruit and milk or any favorite beverage. For dinner, fresh fruit cup, vegetable juice cocktail or cream soup, broiled lean meat or fish, cooked vegetable, potato boiled in the skin, green salad and fruit or sherbet for dessert. When a heavier dessert like baked apples or apple pie is served, the potato is omitted.

Using these meal-patterns it is possible to have all kinds of enjoyable variations, perfectly balanced and chemically correct. Follow them faithfully and you will surprise both your body and your health, and your body more youthful and flexible.

HAM COTTON TO BE WELCOMED

Southern California Democrats today were being invited to attend a welcome home dinner for Hamilton H. Cotton, San Clemente, who attended the national Democratic convention at Philadelphia. The affair will take place in the fiesta room of the Ambassador hotel at Los Angeles at 7 p. m. Thursday.

Cotton won a victory at the convention when the California delegates adopted a resolution which would make it impossible for Cotton's rival, William Neblett, to serve on the state campaign committee because he was an alternate, while Cotton was a regular delegate.

However, the decision rests with Sen. William G. McAdoo, law partner of Neblett.

Among the Santa Anans who have reserved places at the dinner are Harold Dale, Horace Head, B. Z. McKinney, Walter Atkinson, Joe Peterson and Clyde Downing.

Seek Attackers Of Local Woman

Police today were searching for two men who Saturday morning entered the home of Mary Rodriguez, 1861½ West Eighth street, and attempted to attack her.

Miss Rodriguez told officers she struggled with them and was cut on the hand with a knife and struck in the face before they finally fled. She was given treatment at the county hospital for head injuries.

TWO INJURED BY POWDER

Firecrackers were comparatively gentle with Santa Ana folks over the holiday, with only two persons treated for burns caused by exploding powder.

The two victims, both seven years old, were Gilbert Avila, Arce street, and Barbara Beard, North Garney street, who were given treatment at the county hospital for slight hand burns.

Hospital attendants were kept busy with several other miscellaneous accidents, however. Richard Carlson, Los Angeles, was patched up at Santa Ana Valley hospital after his arm was fractured in a fall.

A pugnacious dog and Ben Barnett, 1039 West Myrtle street, met Saturday afternoon with the dog coming out ahead. Barnett was treated at Santa Ana Valley hospital for lacerations on his leg.

Ed Kyle, Los Angeles, was given first aid at Santa Ana Valley hospital for a deep cut on his left finger, sustained yesterday when a knife he was using slipped.

Roy Brooks, Hollywood, sustained a bad burn on his hand Saturday evening when a roman candle backfired as he was shooting it at Emerald Bay.

Band's Fate Up to Council

UNLESS the City Dads come across with about $1,750 for a summer concert series, the far-famed Santa Ana Municipal band may have played its swan song—at least as a civic organization.

Musicians simply can't afford to devote their private time and talent free to the public any longer, according to Bandmaster Leland Auer. Last summer, you recall, the members gave the concerts at their own expense, following the death of the city music fund.

It's simply a case, says Auer, of whether the public is willing to pay for value received in the form of entertainment and community advertising which comes from having a high-class band located here at its beck and call for concerts, parades, and big celebrations.

And there is no kidding about the band being tops. National attention has come to the organization in the past because of its excellence. And fame of the group is widespread through the Southland.

As a musical town, Santa Ana appreciates the band, we believe. There are hundreds of citizens who sincerely would lament the passing of this organization—although they perhaps have not been articulate in asking that the city council vote money to keep the band alive for the summer concert series and other uses.

There has been a tendency for the past few years—because of heavy taxes and slow business—to toss the cultural and aesthetic things of life aside. Music, art, education, parks and those beneficial adjuncts which relieve mental and physical drudgery and elevate the spirits have been skimmed.

But here in Santa Ana, the pendulum now seems to be swinging back to the bright side. Among the civic strides in the past few months have been the opening of the Bowers museum and the voting of a fund for community advertising and promotion. And there is everywhere a strong, sweeping sentiment for the establishment of a park system.

This city is looking ahead! Its citizens and officials are wide-awake once more to the promise of growth and prosperity that the future holds.

And so it would seem unwise at present to let the band go to ruin. If it once falls to pieces, the work of reviving and building it up to the present high standard would be long and costly.

We trust the city council can find a way to keep Santa Ana's municipal band intact and in full blast this summer.

Lesson From History

MOST of us like to believe that we are open-minded, but we have just come across a perfect example of the fact that the contemporary judgment of great men and great events does not coincide with the more sober judgments of history. Note this evaluation of George Washington's eight years of presidency by the Philadelphia General Advertiser in 1797:

"... When a retrospect is taken of the Washington administration for eight years, it is a subject of the greatest astonishment that a single individual should have cankered the principles of Republicanism in an enlightened people, just emerged from the gulf of despotism, and should have carried his designs against the public liberty so far as to have put in jeopardy its very existence. Such, however, are the facts, and with these staring us in the face, this day ought to be a jubilee in the United States."

This little tidbit of editorial closed-mindedness is from Laurance Greene's new book, "America Goes to Press." There's a healthy lesson in this and hundreds of other instances in which closed minds tried to block the wheels of progress.

To us of 1936 the hint is very plain. Progress in the direction of national and racial betterment is being charted by some of our most open, the most enlightened minds in our country and of our generation. Through lack of understanding their aims and their motives, some of their actions may seem as vicious as George Washington's eight years of constructive statesmanship seemed to the Philadelphia editor.

Stout objection based on well-considered conscientious scruples is the duty of every American. But blind resistance to change, merely because it is change, is now, as it has been throughout our national history, the darkest blot on the nation's escutcheon.

Courthouse Pay Raises

THERE is talk at the courthouse about increasing the pay schedule of the various departments by $135,000. This is a terrific sum for that one item alone. If increases are asked for other items commensurate with that, the taxpayers are going to ask what is to be used for money.

We are not opposed in principle to pay raises. In fact, we very definitely believe in them when they are due and can be made. But when we are asked about an increase of $135,000, we want an explanation. Who is to get the increases and how much? Will it be the same for all, will the higher-bracket lists benefit most, or will they be spread over the underpaid list, if there is an underpaid list?

If there is money to spare for more pay, would it be better to employ more help, and thus aid in the solution of unemployment?

Before this matter goes any further, we think the taxpayers are entitled to a complete explanation.

And while we are talking about pay raises, it's a well known fact that the taxpayers would like to have their pay raised through a substantial tax cut. How about it, Mr. Supervisors?

NEW YORK.—Diary: Up and came a snapshot of Warner Oland's dog "Shaggity," pleasant notes from Mrs. Richard Mansfield, Walt Mason and a poke of old fashioned red drops Clara Bell Walsh sent from Louisville.

And so out at a sidewalk table for breakfast of peaches and cream with nut bread.

Home and a Bert Bradley had called and I assume it was Berton Braley, the poet. Finishing my daily dingle, with my lady and Mrs. Keats' Speed for a drive, stopping at Ben Riley's for an iced lemon drink, and dropped by at the Sun for Keats to take him home.

Dinner with Hattie Bell Johnston off for Russia and where not. And put in to see Lisle Bell, brought to bed with a broken toe, and we discussed our prospects in Paris in especial poverty-stricken rue Mouffetard.

Then home, breathing an orison that the wind had puffed into a cooling breeze.

Many if asked to name the most respectable restaurant in New York would likely name one in the category with Pierre's, the Rainbow Room, the Colony, etc. Yet one as respectable as could be named is on—of all streets—Eighty-fourth, south of Forty-sixth. And called Gihuly's. It is proprietoried by two old-fashioned brothers who nearly went broke obeying the prohibition law. Indeed they were getting ready to hang up the shutters when repeal came in. Instead they installed a bar, put in a dozen tables with clean cotton cloths and dishes of pickles and coleslaw. Then they teamed up with Ma Stanley, who went broke trusting jobless actors at her eatery in the 40's. Ma Stanley, with her white hair, black silk dress and grandma-like smile, sits at the left of the door welcoming patrons. Also she makes lemon pies with four fingered meringue top. The Gihulys, smiling their Irishy, in neat white coats are ready to pounce upon and throw out anyone slightly stewed. They hate to see ladies smoke. They say: "We don't mind it so much, but the longhairs on the street, so lady, would you mind, please?" Prunes, prisms and propriety are the watch word—or words at Gihuly's.

El Morocco and The Stork club are still the wheel horses of the dizzy night club whirl. They are rivaled only by the flush days of Texan Guinan but nothing is so ephemeral as night club trade. I can tick off 50 here today, gone tomorrow. No one yet has been able to effect solidity in this precarious calling. Over night tables may become a ghostly array of emptiness. Vide The Cotton club. And others. No one knows why. But somehow the stay outs, all ways easily bored, just yawn and turn to something new. Flashy places rarely have long survivals. The restaurants that endure are sombre, like Luchow's, Monetta's and Billy the Oysterman's.

Then he was asked if he played a musical instrument or owned a dog, cat or parrot. The renter prospect shook his head, looked about furtively and with a violin-pluck walk, led his interrogator into a far corner and whispered: "But I'm going to be honest with you. My fountain pen scratches."

SCIENCE NEWS

Meteorologist H. H. Clayton of Massachusetts is predicting two more cold winters and one or two cool and wet summers. These are to occur in the next four years. In what order he does not mention. His prediction is based on the appearance of more sunspots, which are making their 11-year cycle. However, those who prefer drought to rain can anticipate dry weather from 1944 to 1949.

By DREW PEARSON and ROBERT S. ALLEN

WASHINGTON.—This year's drought, which promises to be worse than 1934, has caused weather experts of the agriculture department to get out their charts and ponder whether the United States is in for a permanent weather change.

Two years ago their chief, Henry Wallace, made a statement that the 1934 drought was "such as we have never had in this country, and are not likely ever to have again."

Henry was wrong, however, and the big question mark in some people's minds is whether successive droughts will gradually turn the middle west into a Sahara.

The experts who study the weather charts say no. There will be no permanent change of climate. We are only passing through a dry cycle of our normal climate. Periods of recurring drought are not new. In the Bible story, Pharaoh dreamed of seven lean kine that ate up the fat kine, and Joseph interpreted the dream to mean recurring years of want and years of plenty.

There have been five droughts of national importance in recent history: 1894, 1901, 1930 and 1934. To compensate for recent droughts there probably will be excessive moisture for some time to come.

MAN-MADE DROUGHT?

The weather experts also have been doing research into the cause of drought, to learn whether it is man-made or nature-made. They have concluded that it definitely is a phenomenon of nature.

What they say is that man has been mistakenly blaming himself for droughts ever since the days of Columbus. During his second voyage, in 1494, Columbus noted in his log the daily showers in Jamaica, and reasoned that such showers were not enjoyed in the islands of Spain because "the woods are cut down that shaded them."

Forests, however, do not produce rain; they merely help retain moisture. What Columbus should have noted was that the trees did not grow along Spanish islands because they got no rain.

On the other hand, the denuding of forests and the plowing up of prairie grass has contributed to dust-storms and the quick run-off of water, so there is less reserve in the soil when drought does hit the country.

ROUGH TREATMENT

Uncle Dan Roper's business address, supposed to be cement happiness and contentment between the New Deal and big business, has decided to go into eclipse for the duration of the campaign. This decision was not entirely voluntary. It was more or less forced on the council at an unrecorded conference with the President not long ago.

Some of the business bigwigs on the council thought it would be a good idea to tell Roosevelt why big business couldn't stomach the New Deal. An emissary was dispatched to Marvin McIntyre, White House secretary, to demand an appointment, "preferably a luncheon engagement."

The tone and manner of the spokesman was that of a big business mogul giving a command to an underling.

When this reached the ear of the President he hit the ceiling. He told McIntyre to tell the coun-oil he would let them have a half hour when it could be conveniently fitted into his schedule. But luncheon was out.

The conference, when it finally did take place, was not what the callers anticipated. Instead of their doing the talking, the President took the floor. In pointed language he read them a lecture on "chiselers" and critics. He cited the fact that, while business men were denouncing administration policies, production, sales and profits were soaring to 1929 levels.

The business men had little to say in reply. Shortly after this conference, the council decided to adjourn for the summer.

FREE SPEECH

In the autumn of 1933 Miss Perkins, secretary of labor of the United States, was denied permission to address a public gathering at Homestead, Pa., a stronghold of the steel barons.

The mayor, a Republican, was quoted as saying that he wouldn't let Dan Roper speak if he didn't want him to; and Miss Perkins had to speak in the federal building.

This week, three years later, Tom Kennedy, secretary-treasurer of the United Mine Workers, far more objectionable to the steel barons than Miss Perkins, is speaking in Homestead in an effort to organize the steel workers.

Reason: A Democratic mayor has been elected.

Note: Jim Farley cites local political turnovers in traditional Republican strongholds as his reason for predicting Roosevelt will carry Pennsylvania.

DUTCH TREAT

High spot of the visit of the Association of Foreign Press Correspondents to Washington not long ago was dinner at the Soviet embassy.

The correspondents represented British, French, Dutch, Japanese and other foreign newspapers, most of them with offices in New York.

During the dinner, a butler suddenly came to Bernard Moloney, president of the association, whispered in his ear:

"Mr. President. One of your guests has just put a sugar bowl in his pocket. Will you please do something about it?"

Moloney looked chagrined, had little time to do anything before another butler approached him:

"Mr. President," he said, "the ambassador asked me to tell you that one of your members has just put two spoons in his pocket. Will you please do something about it?"

Later Moloney held a meeting of his members and asked that the pilfered goods be returned. However, the newspaperman who had taken the sugar bowl—a Dutchman—refused to surrender it. He said he considered it a good joke on the Soviets and he intended to keep it.

So the other correspondents expelled the Dutchman from the association.

What Other Editors Say

STATE READY FOR GAMBLING CRUSADE

(San Bernardino Sun)

Outraged at a decision of a justice of the peace in Sacramento in liberating a crew of race track gamblers, the Sacramento Bee strikes out in crusading style at the gambling racket in California.

Concludes the Bee:

"One thing is certain. 'No question is ever settled until it is settled right.' 'No issue has finis written on it until the public interest and the public welfare are vindicated.'"

And so it is, the duty of the police of Sacramento to continue to crack down on those who may think this decision gives them the right to flout the statutes of the state of California.

"They still can be made to see how mistaken they are in such a notion."

The Sacramento Bee for many years has crusaded against the gambling racket and there must be many thousands of people in California who applaud its courageous policy.

The Bee says "finis" has not been written.

We wonder just what would happen if the Sacramento Bee would devote its energies during the next few months to gathering the complete story of gambling in California and the part half-hearted prosecution and poorly constructed legislation plays in the open door for the gamblers. Suppose the information were suddenly to be laid before the eyes of the state's legislature in session in Sacramento next January? Could the legislators dare refuse a constructive program to really outlaw gambling?

The slot machine, which menaces school children in hundreds of localities throughout California, might not be able to stand the searchlight of a real crusade. New York City has been able to secure the kind of legislation that is effective in the war on slot machines. We wouldn't be surprised if the Sacramento Bee could convince the legislators who gather at the state capital next January that they dare decline to put teeth into a law to ban slot machines.

GRAND YOUNG PARTY

(Ontario Daily Report)

It proved ever so disconcerting to the elders, but the "young shots" had a great deal to do and say at the Republican national convention. For the first time in the history of the party, the young bloods were definitely organized, not only under the banner of the Young Republican clubs, but within the sacred portals of the regular party set-up. Striking in this latter group of leaders was John Hamilton, the man who made Republicans "Landon-conscious." Such youth movement seems to be a good thing for any party, if for no other reason than that it removes a lot of smugness from politics. The clash of old heads and new points the way to a better balance in politics.

SPCRV

(Christian Science Monitor)

The letters stand for the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Returned Vacationists. In Milwaukee, Wis., a group of United States forest service workers gathered recently for grave deliberation.

Someone had asked, "Is there not a Society for the Suppression of Calling Pullman Car Porters 'George'?" And another, mindful of the importance of being earnest, rose up and demanded, "Shall it be said that there exists an Association for the Abolition of Lifting the Lid on Lifts, whereas no fraternity cares for the timid, unprotected Returned Vacationist?"

With such zealots, to think is to act. SPCRIV was the egg laid hard upon the clacking. The cause is noble and the movement should spread like butter on a hot biscuit. For what R. V. has not suffered? As acts of cruelty the society defines the tasteless interrogation by fellow-workers of the luckless wight who got his sun-tan on his own back porch, "Did you go swimming every day?" "Didn't you find it lovely at Bermuda?" You did go there, didn't you?

Still unkindler has sometimes been cut administered by the girl in the golden hair—she who condescends to substitute occasionally in summer months—the chatty R. V. who expatiates long and eloquently on his thrilling adventures at Slincombe-by-the-Sea. By the new rules she restrains that impulsive languidly to inform him that she herself is taking time off to do the Mediterranean with.

On the side of active benevolence, flowers for the homecoming rather than the leavetaking are suggested—a graceful gesture of pleasure at the wanderer's return. And a special badge of merit will be bestowed for gentle tolerance of tales even when they are twice-told.

Skinny Skribbles

Around and About Town

With C. F. SKIRVIN

Noticed one office open Saturday. Ray Overacker and George Bates were in conference. I suppose that Ray wanted to escape the Huntington Beach celebration, and George wasn't interested in fire crackers. Most every other place I was greeted with this information: "Closed. Fourth of July." Which meant more walking for more information. But any patriotic citizen should be willing to do a little more walking for news when business men show their respect and appreciation for the Declaration of Independence.

About this time every four years political parties open up headquarters for the dissemination of literature, and for the purpose of stimulating interest in the campaign. So it looks like a vacant store room is likely to get a tenant for the next five months.

When Al Honer decided it was time to go home from a party, Charley Swanner decided he wanted to go home, too. All of which didn't mean a thing to Honer until Swanner confessed that one of those "detonators" which had been attached to the Honer car failed to detonate. Then the darn thing was transferred to another Legionnaire's car and it failed again. So the joke was on the jokers and they are going to try it again sometime.

I know a fellow who is so saturated with the racing spirit that every time he encounters one of those marble machines with race horse attachments he puts a nickel in just to see the horses go. There isn't a chance in the world for him to get rich out of the investment.

Oscar Carothers went to Forest Home. Told me it was just for a vacation. Now it occurs to me he might have wanted to shoot a few firecrackers and did not care to have the local police looking over his back fence. Anyway, he went to Forest Home. I have a card from him which says so.

Saturday morning—the Fourth of July—downtown—and not a radio going. I do not know of any more convincing way to say that it was a quiet day.

The postoffice looked like a deserted village Saturday morning. All day for that matter. But it was conspicuously quiet about 8 a. m., my usual hour of approach. At that time cars arrive and depart with such rapidity that when you back out you have to watch your driving to avoid passing fenders. I do not know how many people go to the postoffice during the day, but I do know that the letter carriers do not deliver all the mailed.

In the earlier days of our exuberant celebration of the glorious Fourth the fatalities were caused by fireworks. Now automobiles account for the death list.

Orange growers got a break in freight rates. The announcement comes in time to take some of the worry out of the strike situation. Prices are better for fruit than a year ago, with prospects for a continued improvement as the season progresses. Veteran growers look with confidence to better times for the industry.

Automobile manufacturers made a big contribution to summer safety when they increased the efficiency of brakes. Otherwise we would have had to have larger hospitals.

I'm having some trouble with the rubbish boxes left on the sidewalks. Perhaps it is because I get down town too early. But they are the cause of a number of detours. They have a habit of getting right in the middle of the walk. Guess it's just to attract attention.

"J. B." bought himself a nice new car, and was he proud of it! He called the attention of his office associates to the investment and solicited an inspection and comment. He got more than he asked for. The office force thought enough of the car to lift it off the street and carry it onto a used car lot, placard it with a sign which read: "For sale, owner needs the money." "J. B." has decided when he buys another car, what he thinks about it will be enough.

Ed Yost en route to Denver pauses in the rush across the desert to tell me that he is just leaving a windmill station, and I wonder why. He wanted to know if the "sands of the desert grow cold," and how can I tell. About this time he gets sentimental and says the moon is getting low, and who in the dickens cares anything about the moon that far away from civilization. Ed expected to celebrate the Fourth of July in Denver. After an inspection of a mining property somewhere in the Rockies he will return to his commodious office on West Third street, which is also headquarters for Van Porter, Lightnin' and Amos.
